Revolution, Always With Us
Apple Annie's Party
Wet, Says Vermont
War With No Men Visible

— By ARTHUR BRISBANE —

THE REPRESENTATIVE of our State Department in Cuba observes more and more the influence of "Reds" in Cuban affairs. Others, perhaps better acquainted with Cuba, find much dissatisfaction with government and business conditions, but no unusual indication of Communistic activity.

However, there are American citizens in Cuba to be thought of, and also many millions of American dollars invested there, so Uncle Sam is interested.

Late yesterday it was announced that while President Roosevelt would resort to intervention in Cuba only as a last resort, for the protection of Americans and their interests, the "spread of disorders through the island" made immediate precautionary steps necessary. The Secretary of the Navy was sent to Cuba by the President on the battleship Indianapolis, accompanied by other ships. All fighting ships on the Atlantic coast and 1200 marines were ordered to hold themselves in readiness.

When anything like a revolution happens, in Manchukuo, Hitler's new Germany, Cuba, or elsewhere, everybody is "so surprised." Bertrand Russell, philosophical Englishman, reminds you that the history of the western world has been a long series of revolutions. "In the 16th century, Luther and the Reformation; in the 17th, the Puritans, who abolished bishops and cut off the king's head; in the 18th, the American and French Revolutions, plus Wesley's in religion. In the 19th century, revolutions everywhere. As for this century, so far it has been nothing but one long convulsion."

It was also an important revolution when our ancestors stopped running around on foot to ride on tame buffaloes, a greater revolution when they invented two round disks, held together by an axle, and rode on wheels. Other revolutions came with steam, electricity, automobiles and aviation.

And at this moment, the United States, with NRA, is trying the biggest revolution in the history of modern government, the government itself taking over responsibility for industry, wages, hours, prosperity and employment.

Nothing more revolutionary has happened since Louis the Eleventh in France absorbed in himself and the monarchy the powers that had been exercised by the great feudal lords.

An old lady in New York, called Apple Annie, because she sells apples, and is very poor, taken in hand as part of a moving picture advertising plan, is told that she is to have "one glorious day." Apple Annie has had it.

They bought her a fashionable dress, and a hat that came down over one eye. She could not see too well with two, being past 70. The "svelte" young lady, in whose charge she was put, had Annie's hands manicured, her hair waved, took her to lunch at the MOST fashionable restaurant, and ordered the most fashionable food. She took Apple Annie all over town, to see, be seen, and help the advertising idea.

When the old London bus man had his yearly holiday, and really wanted to enjoy himself, he climbed up beside another bus driver to drive back and forth all day over his own route, delighted with freedom from responsibility. Something like that might have suited Apple Annie better, for instance, a present of $50, a comfortable seat and comfortable day's gossip next to some other busy apple lady. But there would have been no advertising in that.

19 INDICTED IN $60,000 RUM HAUL

Continental National Bank Auditor Also Faces Charge

Thirty-five persons were indicted today by the federal grand jury, 19 of them in connection with the seizure of $60,000 worth of liquor from the yacht Pueblos at Scituate last month, and one in the investigation of affairs of the closed Boston-Continental National Bank.

Arthur J. Smith of Medford, formerly auditor at the bank, was indicted for converting to his own use $700 from the account of the Central Shoe Co.

DOUGHTY INDICTED

In addition to the Pueblos liquor case, where the charge is aiding in smuggling, the grand jury returned another smuggling indictment and others alleged passing of counterfeit bills, theft of mail, sending of threatening and scurrilous letters to a Whitman girl and embezzlement by a trustee in bankruptcy.

James E. Doughty of Arlington is charged with embezzling $2500 while acting as trustee in bankruptcy of Andrew W. Freeman.

The Pueblos case was followed by a sensational aftermath when Deputy U. S. Marshal George Murphy, living at Scituate, was threatened with kidnaping and death on the supposition, the authorities said, that he brought about the raid and seizure.

PUEBLOS MEN FAMED

Those indicted in the Pueblos case are Thomas L. Dwyer, George Dwight, William Scannell and

He waved his own handkerchief in return. The great crowd included 7000 Sons of Italy and 2000 girls of a similar organization.

Unite or Fall! Curley's Word to Candidates

Mayor Urges Mayoralty Aspirants to Agree on Result of Pre-Election Formal Canvass of Voters

The Evening American invites comment from candidates and party leaders on the suggestion of Mayor Curley.

Mayor James M. Curley today urged the Boston Evening American to sponsor and conduct a formal, secret, post-card canvass of all registered Democratic voters of the city to determine the strongest Democratic candidate for mayor of Boston.

There are too many candidates in the field for this vastly important office he said.

They will disrupt and divide the Democratic party, he said.

They will defeat the possibility of electing a Democratic mayor for the great Democratic metropolis of the northeast.

They will make certain the election of a minority candidate who in no wise would be respresentative of the majority sentiment of the community at a critical time when universal co-operation is necessary to revive business and restore employment under the national recovery program of President Roosevelt.

There are two ways, Mayor Curley said, to avert this result, which he asserts would be calamitous.

1—One would be for the many Democratic candidates to confer amicably, to select one of their number to be the unanimous Democratic choice for mayor and to agree to support him to the utmost of their ability and enthusiasm.

2—The other course, he believes, would be for an impartial, return postcard straw vote to be conducted among the Democratic voters of Boston by a responsible and unprejudiced agency like the Boston Evening American.

Pledges Himself to Abide by Result

There are some 160,000 registered Democrats in Boston.

Mayor Curley encourages the Boston Evening American to arrange a straw vote which would register the sentiment of these voters.

1—Either the entire 160,000 would be polled by postcard, or

2—One out of every three, assuming there be an average of three votes to a family, and thus the accord of the entire Democratic registration would be satisfactorily ascertained.

He has no candidate of his own, he said, nor is he at this time supporting any one of the numerous candidates who have offered themselves to the public.

He said he will unreservedly support the Democratic candidate who is shown by such a test vote to be the strongest in the public estimation for mayor of Boston in the next important four years.

This is Mayor Curley's definite announcement on that point, which is fraught with deep public interest and political significance because of his prestige and influence that could be exerted in the mayoralty campaign:

"Personally, I have had one experience in the endeavor to name a successor and I do not propose attempting it again.

" not supporting any candidate for the mayoralty for the present, but in the event that a canvass of Democratic voters can be made either by postcard or in the event that the candidates can

The heavy smoke poured into the open windows of pottery plant, forcing 10 workers to flee to the street.

The force of the explosion could be felt in the tenement houses along Condor and Brooks sts. The loss was estimated at $8000.

Cardinal Dougherty, Philadelphia prelate, whose suburban home is guarded today following receipt of a letter demanding $50,000.

$50,000 ASKED OF PRELATE

Philadelphia, Sept. 7 (AP)—A police hunt was on today for a man who demanded $50,000 from Cardinal Dougherty.

Although it was reported at first by police that the demand contained a threat to bomb the cardinal's residence in lower Merion township unless the money was forthcoming, Cardinal Dougherty said:

"The only germ of truth in the report is that some mentally deranged party made a demand for $50,000. There was no threat of death by bomb."

The demand, lower Merion police revealed today, was made in a letter received by the Cardinal yesterday, and was apparently sent by an eccentric who has roamed about the grounds of the archepiscopal residence for three weeks.

A description of the crank was given to police by Thomas Frederick, a gardener's assistant at the residence, who said the man had boasted last night that he had mailed the letter and would return tonight for the $50,000.

30 U. S. WARSHIPS RUSH TO TRAIN GUNS ON CUBA AS CIVIL WAR LOOMS

Destroyer Coming From Newport to Boston to Take On Regulars for Dash to Island Republic

WAR CLOUDS OVER CUBA

All American naval vessels in Atlantic waters were ordered by the Navy today to hold themselves in readiness to go to Cuba on short notice.

Sixteen destroyers were ordered to Cuba today, bringing the total number of ships in the U. S. war armada either in Cuban waters or ordered there to 30.

Eight fast coast guard destroyers, each carrying seven officers and 88 enlisted men, were also ordered from Hampton Roads to join the other United States naval craft now in Cuban waters.

The eighth destroyer squadron in training duty off Newport, R. I., was instructed to discharge reservists and replace them with full complements of regular officers and men.

The Claxton and Taylor were ordered to sea under secret orders.

The Dupont will carry her Boston reserves to the Boston Navy Yard and there fill her complement of regular officers and men.

Leaders of many factions in Cuba agreed today that the island faced two grave eventualities—either civil war or armed intervention by the United States. A move was started in Havana against "Yankee imperialism."

At Quantico, Va., the Seventh Marines were reported "fully organized and ready to go" to Cuba, 1250 strong.

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—With the dispatch of 16 destroyers bringing to 30 the armada of American war vessels to hem Cuba in the American government stood ready today to land marines and blue jackets on the first genuine threat to American citizens.

At the same time, there was resolution against the momentus step of taking over the island's government by armed intervention.

Already the psychological effect of American fighting vessels in sight off the coast was seen as aiding in holding the lid on the cauldron which Cuba has become.

Orders in the hands of the commanders of the destroyers, cruisers and the one big battleship, either enroute to Cuban waters or already there, were guarded closely, but it was understood the administration would not hesitate a moment in putting armed men ashore to guard Americans and their property.

For such a course there was ample precedent. On several occasions in the last two decades small American forces have been landed when sudden revolt flared and Americans were placed in jeopardy.

In each instance troops were withdrawn promptly when matters settled down. Action of this type, prompt and definite though it might be, is regarded here as nothing like armed intervention in which thousands of marines or soldiers are massed upon the island to control it from tip to tip, maintain order and administer every governmental function.

If a government capable of protecting life and property—including the billion of American investments—is established by the Cuban people, nothing hinting of intervention will be invoked.

Eight navy and eight coast guard destroyers were ordered today to Cuba. In addition, the Indianapolis was bearing Secretary Swanson there, and last night the destroyer Overton was sent from the Panama Canal to the Isle of Pines, off the south Cuban coast, to protect American lives there if necessary. Many wealthy Americans have winter residences on the Isle of Pines.

U. S. Armed Intervention or Civil War Cuba's Only Choice

Havana, Sept. 7—Turbulent Cuba stood at the crossroads today, with some political factions convinced that civil war would be necessary to solve her governmental problem, while others looked for intervention by the United States.

PARADE, CHILDREN'S PLEDGES TO TOUCH OFF "BUY NOW" DAY

When 140,000 children in Boston schools take the pledge to support the NRA and the Blue Eagle next Wednesday, Sept. 13, Boston will start her own NRA Day that will climax with a parade by civic, patriotic and business organizations in the afternoon.

MAYOR CURLEY

Plans sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser have met with heartfelt response on all sides.

President Roosevelt's drive to put a nation back to work and restore prosperity will reach its peak here at that time. Already the state and local NRA committees have enrolled employers and consumers practically 100 per cent.

This NRA Day next Wednesday will gather the youth of the city into the fold of the Blue Eagle.

Civic leaders also contacted the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser to voice their enthusiastic response and wholehearted co-operation.

Many other plans for observance of Boston's NRA day are in the making with the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations lending their aid to make the occasion a grand success. Members of official National Recovery committees also are sponsors of the plans.

The day is designed, and surely will, show President Roosevelt that this city is second to none in backing up the recovery plans which already have turned the nation toward the road that means renewed prosperity.

Definite details of the observance will be given the public now until the start of the big day next Wednesday through the columns of the Boston Evening American.

The school children will be kept in touch with the plans through their classrooms, their teachers to be furnished details from day to day by higher officials of the school department.

NRA
MEMBER
WE DO OUR PART

School Superintendent Patrick T. Campbell endorsed the NRA Pledge Day for Boston public schools and members of the school committee will take a formal vote on the matter next Monday evening although all five members have already expressed their approval of the plan.

Each school child will be provided with a primer explaining the aims and purposes of the NRA and the meaning of the Blue Eagle and will be asked to take the pledge: "I pledge myself, as a good American, to do my part. I will buy where the Blue Eagle flies. I will ask my family to Buy in September and Buy American-made products. I will help President Roosevelt bring back prosperity."

The "Over the Top" parade in the afternoon, approved by the NRA committees of both state and city, is under formulation today. The time, route and roster will be announced later.

Plans for this parade received the following endorsement from the Massachusetts State Recovery Board, through Maj. Paul Hines, director of publicity: "The suggestion of the Boston American-Sunday Advertiser that Massachusetts stage a parade to dramatize the nationwide buying campaign was favorably received at a meeting of the executive committee of the state board.

"It was the feeling of the members of the executive committee that anything that will tend to stimulate normal buying at this time will be a tremendous assistance to President Roosevelt and Gen. Johnson in promoting the success of the NRA.

PATRICK T. CAMPBELL

"The members of the executive committee stand ready to assist any of the city and town committees in promotion of anything that will help stimulate normal buying at this time.

"The executives of the state board therefore suggest that the NRA parade held in Boston, Wednesday, Sept. 13, be staged under the direction of, and with the cooperation of, the City of Boston NRA commmittee."

Natt W. Emerson, general manager of the Boston NRA committee's organization, thereupon declared the committee in favor of the plan and promised full co-operation.

NRA SETS COAL DEADLINE, GIVES FORD MORE TIME

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 7 (INS)—The administration took decisive action today to break the deadlock over a bituminous coal code, but postponed a showdown in the case of Henry Ford.

Following a series of conferences, during which President Roosevelt called coal operators and union leaders to the White House, the administration's course was outlined as follows:

1. Coal operators will be given until 6 p. m., Friday, to accept a code of fair competition or Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, will present it to President Roosevelt for signature Saturday.

2. Urgent demands by the administration for an agreement between Appalachian coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America may result in the signing of a union contract today.

COURT ACTION THREAT

3. The NRA will watch the Ford plants for a violation of the automobile code.

While court action is held inevitable if violations are established, the administration plans no hasty action against Ford.

The bituminous coal situation overshadowed all other activities of the NRA as Mr. Roosevelt and Johnson, tired of weeks of futile bickering, served the ultimatum upon the operators to agree or have a code forced upon them.

Committees representing bituminous operators and United Mine Workers officials were called into conference at the White House after Johnson had wrestled all yesterday with plans to end the deadlock.

"I will present a code to the industry today and give them until 6 p. m. the next day to agree, somewhat like we did on the oil code," said Johnson. "I expect to present the code to the President Saturday for approval."

The big stumbling block, Johnson said, was the fight over a closed shop.

FORD PLEDGED TO AID

Ford's failure to operate under the Blue Eagle was discussed by Mr. Roosevelt and Johnson.

Johnson reiterated that Ford does not have to sign an agreement to obey the law, but does have to sign a certificate to get the Blue Eagle. He asserted that he had not heard from Ford since he saw him a month ago. Assurances were given at that time, he added, that Ford would cooperate with the government.

It's Tough to Be Son of President

New York, Sept. 7 (INS)—It's tough to be the President's son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., told ship news reporters today, when he returned to New York aboard the S. S. Manhattan from Europe.

F. Roosevelt, Jr.

Young Franklin, who is 19, mentioned the difficulties of bearing such a name as he proudly told that he had made the trip to Spain, Italy and other places for less than $1000.

"In some spots they didn't know I was the President's son," he said. "Then I could live cheaply. But wherever they know it they would insist that I take a large room at a hotel and have the best service and the best of everything. And I had to pay for it. I don't mean they overcharged me. But they did make me spend more than I had intended.

Asked about his bullfighting experiences in which he was photographed in Spain making a veronica with his cloak before a young bull, he said:

NRA TO SPEED STRIKE PEACE AT BROCKTON

Brockton, Sept. 7—Shoe manufacturers and leaders of rival unions at odds in the strike of 4000 workers may be summoned to Washington by the National Labor Board at the behest of NRA officials, word from the capital today said.

A speedy settlement of the controversy is demanded by the NRA and not much time will be permitted State Labor Commissioner Edwin S. Smith to arbitrate the difficulties, it was indicated. Recovery officials are anxious that some sort of settlement, if only temporary, be effected before Tuesday when what promises to be a stormy series of hearings on a code of competition for the shoe industry open here.

Commr. Smith, meanwhile, awaited permission from the national labor board to act as mediator as well as fact-finder in the troubles. Smith said he had no authority to suggest that the workers return to the plants, pending settlement.

A request he be given such authority was wired to Washington by Frank A. Goodwin, counsel for the Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen, recently formed local which is bucking the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union.

Several hundred more workers joined the strikers when, at the George E. Keith Co. plant, the 11th factory effected by the walkout, an undetermined number quit their benches as a protest against the discharge of four heelers, who had not paid dues to the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. Brotherhood officials said a majority of the 1200 workers walked out. Plant officials said a majority remained at work.

LABOR ACCUSES JOHNSON FIRM

Newark, N. J., Sept. 7 (AP)—Eric Ross, labor union official, charges violations of the NRA at the Lea Fabrics, Inc., fatory, of whih Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, is president, in telegrams sent today to President Roosevelt, Gen. Johnson, Sec. Perkins and the labor board of the NRA.

Ross, secretary and treasurer of the International Carpet Workers' Union, said the Lea firm has cut the working week of its employes from 48 to 40 hours without increasing their hourly wage of 40 cents. his(he said, reduces weekly wages from $19.6 to $16.

He also charges that Herbert Smalley, an employe, was discharged for attempting to organize a union. Ross said Smalley had been with the firm four years and that no satisfactory reason for his discharge had been given.

While the firm has addel additional employes, Ross said, it is now operating on a 24-hour schedule, seven days a week. Ross charges the firm has failed to live up to the spirit and letter of the NRA.

Lea Fabrics, Inc., is a subscriber to the National Woolen ans Worsted Carpets code which was filed yesterday.

Ellery K. Files, vice-president and general manager of Lea Fabrics, Inc., finds no basis 'or the charges made by Ross, he said.

Cleveland Carmen to Strike Friday

Pittsfield Tax Drops

Pittsfield, Sept. 7—The 1933 tax rate for Pittsfield was announced as $36, a decrease of $2 from the 1932 assessment.

MRS. PIGEON IS OUT OF FIGHT FOR MAYOR

Boston's "free-for-all" mayoralty fight, with 13 candidates already in the field, is not likely to be further entangled by a last-hour entry of a feminine aspirant, according to political chatter at City Hall today.

Mrs. Elizabeth West Pigeon's refusal to run for re-election to the school committee caused her friends to hope she would enter the mayoralty race. Her record in handling school affairs, and her popularity as a vote-getter, caused her to be boomed some months ago as "Boston's next mayor."

Mrs. Pigeon at her home in East Boston today said she would not run for mayor "this year."

There was little prospect that William Arthur Riley, chairman of tre school committee, who announced, simultaneously, with Mrs. Pigeon he would not be a candidate for re-election, would aspire for mayoralty honors. He stated he could not afford the financial burden of a city-wide campaign.

Politicial obeservers interpreted the Riley and Pigeon announcements as "gestures" and predicted eventually both may consent to run. Only siv candidates for the school committee have taken out nomination papers to date. Papers have been issued to 132 candidates for the City Council.

The 13 candidates for mayor, whose scouts have until 5 p. m. on Sept. 26 to file the required 3000 signatures are:

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, former Maycolm E. Nichols, Frederick W. Mansfield, Theodore A. Glynn, chairman of the street commission and former fire commissioner; Senator Joseph A. Langone, Jr., former State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook, his brother Washington Cook, Curtis C. Metzler Wesley D. Hamilton, John J. Connors, James L. McCusker and Edward Stevens.

Stevens, who took out his papers yesterday, lives at 405 Warren st., Roxbury. He does not seem to be disturbed by the fact he is 13th in line.

New York, Sept. 7 (INS)—An annual income of $95,215 was decreed for Diana Duff Frazier, 11, today, but indications were she wouldn't enjoy it for quite a while.

The income was settled on her by the will of her father, the late Frank Duff Frazier, wealthy broker and sportsman, who left an estate valued at about $5,000,000.

An inventory of five trust funds set up by Diana's grandparents to become hers after her father's death disclosed the size of the come due her. But her mother, Mrs. Frederick Watriss, social registerite, indicated she wouldn't care to have Diana receive so much.

Mrs. Watriss, divorced from Frazier in 1926, said her first husband had paid $750 a month for his daughter's support and education and that she would prefer that arrangement continue until the little girl reaches 21.

"I don't want the child to grow up thinking too much about money," she said.

SALES EXPERT SEES GREATER BOOM ON WAY

Retail sales increased 15 per cent in August over the dollar value figures for August last year, and the increase in September should be even greater, it was revealed today by Samuel Allison, sales expert, at the 20th annual National Business Conference at Babson Park.

Speaking on the sales outlook for 1934, Allison said that every district in the nation shared benefits of the increased business, although the advance was greatest on the Pacific Coast, in the Southeast and in the Southwest.

"In the industrial states," he said, "conditions show further improvement. New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island are ahead of a year ago by a wide margin.

"For 1934, sales volume should be greater than for 1933. Consumer goods, or the necessities, will, of course, be the first to reflect the increase in purchasing power.

"There is a tremendous and generally underestimated starved demand. For instance, more and more people are rapidly coming to the place where they are going to have to buy shoes and clothing if they want to go out in public. This buying will be further stimulated by the certainty of higher prices later on.

"Incidentally, the price policy followed will have a big effect on sales volume. Buyers are still afraid of their shadows. Boosting prices on the excuse of the NRA will dry up purchasing. One of the best ways to estrange customers today is for concerns to give them cause to feel that any price advances are unjustified by the facts.

"Advertising, under NRA, will have a better chance to do its real job of demand-creation. Cheap and unfair competition and the featuring of price to the practical exclusion of all other selling arguments has nullified much of the real job of the advertising program.

"Thinking is greater now than ever. Advertising will be more important now that products must be lifted out of the welter of other products and given distinctiveness."

Blue Eagle Roosts in Hoover Home

Stanford University, Cal., Sept. 7—The Herbert Hoover household, citizen consumers, is signed up under the widespreading wings of President Roosevelt's Blue Eagle.

The query whether the former President has signed an NRA consumer's pledge was made to him through his secretary, Paul Sexson. After consultation, Sexson reported the Household was "signed up."

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover are the only members of the family living at the campus home here. But the "household," Sexson said, includes secretaries of both and servants.

500 VIOLATORS UNDER CODE ARE FOUND

Moves against employers in this district, alleged to be violating the code, were unoer way today by the Boston Recovery Committee's subboard on conciliation and adjustment, following receipt of over 500 complaints.

The significant angle, according to NRA leaders, is that many of the complaints are from consumers who state they intend to stop buying at shops of which they complain.

In a specimen letter, given out today, the writer said he was a signer of a consumers' pledge card and had been observing conditions at a branch grocery store in Boston.

CU TWORKING HOURS

Last Saturday, he said, this store employed three men on full time and one man on part time. The store management not only shortened the hours of a couple of men who worked full time but have also reduced the hours of a a full time and a part time man to no hours at all.

Instead of employing more help, this store, which displays the Blue Eagle, is employing less help, according to the complainant, leaving the manager, who receives no added pay because he has been rated an executive, to do the work of three men.

"I think," the complainant wrote, "that this company should not be allowed to display the NRA emblem, or else be forced to hire at least its regular employes."

RULINGS ISSUED

A number of new rulings were received by the Boston Recovery Committee today in interpretation of certain codes.

Inside commission salesmen, if they have been solely on commission prior to June 16, are now exempt from the maximum hours and the minimum wage provisions of the President's re-employment agreement.

Another new ruling provides that employes may not be worked longer hours to make up for time taken out through being off on legal holidays.

Still another new ruling is that no gratuities received by employes may be applied by an employer to make up part of the employer' wages.

CLAIRE OFFERED READ LIFE-TIME 'LOVE JOB,' TESTIFIES HIS WIFE

'FREE BOARD,' NO WORK, IF HE'D FLY

Showed Her Columnist Comment on Escapade With Blonde

Los Angeles, Sept. 7—The closing chapters of her story of how she lost th love of her handsome husband will be told today by Mrs. Alfred C. Read, Jr., in her $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Claire Windsor, film actress.

The blonde screen player's attorneys announced they will move for a non-suit when Mrs. Read has finished her testimony and her counsel rests her case.

Mrs. Read so far has related how her romance with the broker blossomed during their college days and how they were happy until the broker met Miss Windsor. They are now divorced.

LIFE-TIME 'JOB'

"Alfred said Miss Windsor told him he would never need to work again if he would just go to South America with her," said Mrs. Read once in her testimony.

The statement provoked gasps in the crowded courtroom and caused Claire to hide her face in her hands and laugh bitterly.

Miss Windsor had testified Read won her heart on a transcontinental train trip by declaring himself a single man. Later, she said, he admitted he was married but asserted he and his wife were separated an a divorce was contemplated.

When Read returned from a New York trip on which he met Miss Windsor, Mrs. Read said her husband took her in his arms and said:

"You are a little shrimp compared with the woman I am running around with."

The night of his return from the east, Mrs. Read testified, she went to a dance with her husband who exhibited to her some newspaper clippings in which a New York columnist mentioned his name in connection with Miss Windsor.

Later Read told her, she said, that the newspaper clippings were not entirely a joke, but he had intended dropping Miss Windsor as gradually as possible.

BEGGED HER BACK

"He kept saying everything about Claire was so much grander than the things about me," Mrs. Read stated. "I went to my parents' home and later, when he begged me for one more chance, I returned to him and we were happy until March 13, when we separated again."

Miss Windsor yesterday told of how her romance with Read faded after she learned he was interested in other Hollywood personalities. She mentioned no names.

Mrs. Read told of a raid in Aqua Caliente in which she sought Read and Claire in a "love cottage."

With detectives Mrs. Read broke into a bungalow at the Mexican resort, only to find that Miss Windsor and Read's sister, Grace, occupied adjoining rooms and that her husband,

Read, she said, sobbed bitterly when she found some letters written to him by the actress—letters which now form the basis for her heart balm suit.

Some of the letters she discovered, Mrs. Read testified, were burned when Read promised her he would give up his association with Miss Windsor.

Earlier, she testified she spent a happy married life with the young Oakland broker and two children for four and one-half years before he met the striking Miss Widsor.

Curley Asks Police Curb Prado Thefts

So great have been the inroads of lead-pipe and brass thieves in buildings being razed preliminary to construction of the North End "Prado" that Mayor Curley today asked police protection for the contractors.

The contractors salvage the lead pipe, brass fittings, doors, windows and other material, but much of this was lost to them on the first day of the razing. From now on, the razing operations in Unity, Salem and Hanover sts. will be guarded by police.

Cranberry Men Seek to Settle Strike

Plymouth, Sept. 7—The outlook for cranberry sauce Thanksgiving Day looked brighter today, when Isaac B. Holmes, "cranberry king" announced he would attempt to settle the strike of his workers.

When it became apparent the strike was threatening to run the entire length of Cape Cod a group of bog owners conferred here. They decided to meet strikers this afternoon in an effort to settle differences. It was reported pickers would be given a wage increase, but that it would not be as large as demanded.

Elks Ruler Guest of Curley at Lunch

Walter F. Meier of Seattle, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, was entertained at luncheon at the Copley Plaza hotel today by Mayor Curley. The Boston lodge delegation which met Meier on his arrival were also at the luncheon.

Death and Kidnap Threats Force Millionaire to Give Up 'Son'

Strengs Return Boy to Orphanage to Save Him From Plot

Newark, N. J., Sept. 7—Death and kidnap threats were revealed today as the probable reason why wealthy Mr. and Mrs. Jean Strengs of Paterson sent 14-year-old Peter Christopholus back to Father Flanagan's orphanage in Omaha.

Previously it had been stated that the Omaha orphan failed to live up to his role as a substitute for the Strengs' son, Peter, who was drowned.

An extortion gang sought $50,000 from the millionaire silk manufacturer as the price of safety for both Mrs. Strengs and the boy, Acting Deputy Chief Eugene Heller disclosed.

Terror seized the wealthy couple who could see no way out of the dilemma but to abandon their adoption plan, it was said, thus removing the boy from their home, where he was a prize for kidnapers.

The death and kidnaping threats were conveyed in letters mailed from Newark, the first arriving shortly after the boy was brought east from Omaha, where his resemblance to their dead son had greatly impressed the Strengs.

There were three letters, mailed a week apart, all in the same handwriting. A contact point in front of Newark City Hall was named and police set a trap. It failed.

Strengs paced the sidewalk on the afternoon of August 19 while 12 detectives watched from concealment. A man approached Strengs and asked for the price of a meal. He was fairly well-dressed and was quickly seized. But he proved to be an authentic panhandler.

A week later Strengs again waited, carrying a purse containing newspaper clippings wrapped in green paper, but nobody appeared. Federal authorities were called into the investigation and a score of clues have been run down, but without result.

Peter Christopholus, 11, who looks so much like dead Peter Strengs that the latter's milianaire parents in Newark, N. J., sought to adopt him. But kidnap and death threats forced Strengs to return the boy to an Omaha orphanage to save his life. (International News Photos.)

ELY TO GUARD CODE WAGES

Governor Joseph B. Ely, acting upon a protest lodged with him by organized labor and an organization of general contractors, stated today that he would recommend that in all future contracts let by the state public works department for roads and bridges where federal funds figure, a clause be inserted with classification and schedule of wages.

It was claimed that the wages fixed by Commissioner Frank E. Lyman on projects now under construction are in violation of the spirit and intent of the NRA.

Lyman, it was charged, fixed wages at 45 cents an hour while the federal government, under the Recovery Act, set the price for unskilled labor at 50 cents an hour and up to $1.20 for skilled work.

Town Split on Hiring of Alien Teacher

Bloomfield, Ct., Sept. 7 (INS)—Dispute over re-engagement of Miss Nellie K. Paget of Brunswick, Que., an alien, as teacher in local schools for another year gripped this little town today.

Miss Paget, although a teacher here for nine years, has never become a full-fledged American citizen, and on grounds that she is an alien the Board of Education defeated a motion to re-hire her. Chairman W. A. McInnis ruled the motion lost after he voted against her to create a tie. Superintendent C. M. Larcomb urged her reappointment.

'Tipping' Included Under Hotels' Code

Washington, Sept. 7 (INS)—The tipping custom will be recognized by law under the code proposal of the American Hotel Association.

The proposal which affects 500,000 workers, regards tips as a part of the wages of bellmen, porters, waiters, barber shop and beauty shop employes. Hotel proprietors agreed to raise the wages of these workers to the 1929 level, and allow them to keep their tips.

They estimate 80,000 to 100,000 jobs will be created.

New York City Cuts Judges' Towel Quota

New York, Sept. 7 (INS)—New York is going in for civic economy. So judges and employes of the municipal courts will get only one towel every two weeks in future, instead of one every week.

State Board Orders Beer Licenses

Billiard Ball Missing, But Did Baby Swallow It?

Brockton, Sept. 7—"Where, oh, where is that billiard ball?"

That was the cry about the wards of the Brockton Hospital today as Richard Lewis, 11 months old, lay on a hospital cot, playing with toys, ignorant of the excitement and worry he has caused his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Galligan, and doctors and nurses in the hospital.

Last night Mrs. Galligan, who lives in Forest ave., called police and excitedly shouted, "My grandchild is choking." And then the excitement began.

When police arrived, Richard greeted them with a smile, but Mrs. Galligan explained that he had swallowed a small-sized billiard ball and that it was in his throat.

Richard was rushed to the hospital and into the X-ray room where Dr. Barrett and nurses worked more than seven hours without finding any trace of the billiard ball.

Richard was taken back to the ward to be held for further observations and Mrs. Galligan was requested to look about the house for the missing ball. If she finds it Richard will be returned home. Otherwise he will be held for three days for further observation. Dr. Barrett said he felt positive the ball will be found somewhere in the house.

JAILED WOMAN IN HYSTERIA

Plymouth, Sept. 7—Hysterically persistent in her refusal to pay a $15 fine which would give her freedom, Mrs. Magaret Day, Scituate matron, presented a problem to officials in the county jail here today.

She was committed yesterday for refusal to pay th efine imposed for striking Miss Mary Farrell, an elderly neighbor, with a rake as the climax of a two-year quarrell over a difference which has been forgotten.

She spent a sleepless night in her cell and became hysterical today, accusing Miss Farrell of having testified falsely at the hearing.

Officials feared her condition in ingham court. She ate little, might result in a stroke and communicated with Scituate police, requesting them to contact Mrs. Day's daughter, said to be a Boston shool teacher. They thought the daughter might prevail upon the mother to pay the fine.

Mrs. Day had ample funds with her when she was convicted.

1500 Ponemah Mills Strikers to Return

Norwich, Ct., Sept. 7 (INS)—More than 1500 striking employes of the Ponemah Mills in Taftville today prepared to go back to work after being promised by Dr. Edward G. Dolan, Connecticut recovery board chairman, that "we'll rip the blue eagle off the mill doors if its owners' actions warrant."

"You go back to work," Dr. Dolan said, "and we'll make the mill owners live up to the law. For this law has teeth in it and it will clamp down on anyone who violates it or abuses the blue eagle."

Ham and Eggs End Girl Picket's Fast

Philadelphia, Sept. 7 (AP)—Ham, eggs and fried potatoes were too much today for the will power of Frances Moore, college graduate and New York debutante who, jailed for refusal to pay a $10 fine, went on a hunger strike in the Montgomery County Prison. Her fast lasted only one day.

Miss Moore was one of 18 who were arrested while picketing the plant of Rosenau Brothers, children's clothing manufacturers.

Police Believe Traffic in Girls Lies Behind O'Rourke Killing

John E. "Trucker" O'Rourke, ets, was buried in West Roxbury today while police sought the solution of his murder in the shadowy realm of the most despicable racket of them all.

O'Rourke, known among his kind as a double-crosser and an informer, had turned from a failing traffic in rum to the never-failing traffic in unfortunate girls, police said, and in his newly-established connections with a vice ring the answer to who shot him and dumped his body in Easton is expected to be found.

Never one to listen to the advice of smarter criminals than himself, O'Rourke is believed to have surrendered his life in forfeit for an unwise attempt to enlist the sweetheart of a Boston gangster in his nefarious enterprise.

SEALED HIS DOOM

"This guy had better leave my girl alone or he'll be rubbed out," was the gangster's warning, according to police information. O'Rourke didn't leave her alone.

"I knew they'd get him if he didn't lay off that girl," was another quotation attributed to a Dedham club employe by the authorities after he had heard of O'Rourke's murder.

Police know the girl, the gangster and the Dedham man, they said, but they lack direct evidence and suspect the slaying was the work of paid killers difficult to trace.

AUTO DOUBLY LISTED

They went to Dedham today, State Detectives Clemmey and Fleming to question the club worker. State Detective Brouillard went to the State House to check a list of telephone numbers found in O'Rourke's clothing.

The registration of O'Rourke's roadster, found abandoned near an apartment he is suspected to have maintained in Dorchester, assumed greater importance when police established it had been doubly listed in the state records, once under the name of O'Rourke, again under the name of Mrs. Dorothy S. Pierce of Newton. Mrs. Pierce is absent from the state on a vacation and police will question her upon her return. They believe she is innocently involved.

Avalanche of Pigs Swamps Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 7 (AP)—Mounting receipts of pigs, shipped here for the government to purchase and slaughter, today had carried arrivals far past the number that could be cared for by the packers. The pens were filled with 38,000 that could not be handled.

Tuesday 75,000 pigs came in, yesterday 65,000 and today 40,000 more were yarded. In 14 days since the bonus has been offered 286,495 pigs have been slaughtered.

Merit Clause to Be Cut From Shoe Code

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—Recovery officials said today that boot and shoe manufacturers probably would be asked to withdraw the merit clause in the code proposed for their industry.

Elimination of the clause by which manufacturers asserted the right to hire, promote and retain employes, regardless of union affiliation was said to be inevitable in view of a statement by Administrator Johnson declaring it would be barred it future codes.

Caught Bad Man and Didn't Know It

Chicago, Sept. 7 (INS)—Unaware that they had made a prize catch last week when they arrested a man who said he was "Red" Kelly, Cicero police today discovered that they had captured James J. Connelly, Baltimore's most notorious criminal.

Connelly was taken into custody after he had shot three men in a card game in Cicero.

CURLEY PLANS SUBWAY FIGHT

Mayor Curley announced today that he had not dropped his fight for a subway to cost $8,500,000 under Huntington ave., despite the rejection of this project by the state emergency finance board.

"I haven't finished with that yet," he said.

The mayor said that there were 1100 more veterans on the city's soldiers' relief rolls in August than in July, and that 75 per cent of those on the list could be removed in 60 days if the subway project was undertaken.

The total number on the list now is 2626, as compared with 2250 in August last year.

75 CHILDREN IN MAD DOG PANIC

Everett police cornered and shot a Boston terrier today after it had spread terror among 75 children playing at Glendale Park.

The head was sent to Harvard Medical School to determine if the dog had rabies.

As far as could be learned none of the children was bitten, but all were badly frightened as the dog snapped at them viciously.

Numerous telephone calls from houses near the park warned the police and Patrolman Fred Gibson went to the scene in a cruising car with a lasso. He could not loop the dog but cornered it in a yard in Ferry st.

Motorcycle Officer Lewis McNeill arrived at the same time and killed the dog. The animal had no collar and the owner is not known.

3750 FAMILIES DESTITUTE BY TEXAS GALE

4000 Homes Wrecked and 8000 Damaged, Red Cross Shows

Harlingen, Tex., Sept. 7 (AP)—Army ambulance detachments today began a search through the hurricane-devastated lower Rio Grande valley for injured refugees.

It was considered likely additional fatalities would be discovered in remote communities, unheard from since the storm abated.

A preliminary survey by the Red Cross, covering the stricken area linked by paved highways, accounted for 24 deaths and hundreds of persons injured. There were found to be 3750 families destitute, 4000 homes destroyed and 8000 damaged.

Four persons lost their lives at Harlingen, two at San Benito, seven at Rio Hondo, one at Port Isabel, two in rural communities and eight at Matamoros, Mexican resort city across from Brownsville.

REPAIR TELEPHONES

Clearing weather allowed telephone and telegraph repair crews to restore communication lines. Highways were being opened to traffic again as water slowly receded.

The storm denuded citrus groves of their ripening crop, valued at around $6,000,000, and leveled cotton all over the fertile valley. The damage to property was expected to run into the millions.

Heavy rains on the watershed of the Rio Grande, particularly on the Mexican side in the vicinity of Monterey, caused speculation as to how much the border river would rise, but residents of the valley had no fear of a flood. A vast system of dykes and drainage canals has been erected to protect the "Winter Garden."

TROOPS GIVE AID

A regiment of the United States Army, under command of Col. L. Brechemin, Jr., took over emergency hospitals established by doctors and nurses from Houston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and other points. The medical unit, Col. Brechemin said, was prepared for any contingency.

Col. Brechemin advised city and county authorities on sanitation and warning was issued against drinking any water not known to be absolutely pure. The army medical unit began inoculations with typhoid serum to forestall possible epidemic.

Foodstuffs, blankets and other emergency supplies were distributed to the thousands of refugees in the valley.

FIGHT OPENS ON BRETT'S WILL

Mrs. Arlene Brett, who was cut off with $100 in the will of her husband, Donald C. Brett, young Boston department store owner, filed formal protest in Dedham Probate Court today against allowance of the will.

This action, taken through Atty. Frank J. Murray, was the first official step in her attempt to break the will which leaves everything but the $100 to Brett's mother, Mrs. Charles E. Brett of Harwich and Malden.

Brett, who was 34, committed suicide by shooting in the Brett apartment in Englewood ave., Brookline, July 22, according to the official report of the medical examiner, although the widow claims he was slain.

The estate amounts to several hundred thousand dollars, according to the widow, who wants a share of it for herself and five-year-old son. She asserts Brett and she had patched up their quarrels and that he intended to change the provisions of his will.

Belmont Man Sees Girl Dive Unclad, to Death in Lake

The Belmont man is Carl Krueger of 61 Pine st., sales manager for a candy concern at the same address. He was one of several guests aboard a cabin cruiser for "an innocent gathering of business associates," as one of the guests expressed it.

"This is a hell of a world!"

After dinner at the Columbia Yacht Club the group of five men and four girls embarked on the ship for an evening on the moonlit lake.

Albert F. Gundelach, member of a moving picture supply firm, whose father-in-law owns the boat, said the party was arranged by Paul L. Redel, president of the Angelus-Campfire Co., confectioners, to entertain two of his salesmen, Krueger and Otto Weber of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

Describing the tragedy Redel said:

"After we had dinner, we were tied up at the Columbia Yacht Club. The Moore girl startled us all by coming out of a hatch in view of other people in the club. She had taken off all her clothes; we hurried her below, but she raised such a rumpus we pulled away into the lake to avoid a scene. The other girls tried to quiet Miss Moore by having her lie down. But she refused to put on her clothes."

Later in the evening, Redel told the coroner, the girl again came to the deck, still unclad and "completely" intoxicated. Members of the party agreed that she danced about madly, screaming.

Y. D. VETS MOVE ON FRAMINGHAM

Probably the biggest day Framingham has ever had since wartime back in 1917 will keep things moving in that town on next Saturday with the annual reunion of the 101st Infantry, A. E. F., in progress and an air show at Gould Framingham airport attracting other throngs.

The big air show will include elimination trials for the National Charity Air Pageant on Roosevelt Field, L. I., scheduled for Oct. 9 with the trials under auspices of the U. S. Amateur Pilots' Association.

Four men and four women pilots will be picked Saturday at the Framingham flying field, owned by L. F. "Teddy" Gould, with between 25 and 30 men and women pilots already entered in the competition, including Margaret "Peggy" Kimball of Lexington and Mrs. Theodore W. Kenyon of Newton Center.

John LaSalle, prominent sportsman flyer of Whitinsville, has been named governor of the trials for Massachusetts and will be in charge in Framingham, where admission will be free.

The annual reunion of the wartime 101st Infantry will begin on Friday, but will reach its peak on Saturday, 16th anniversary of the forming of the 101st and the departure of the Yankee Division for France, and 15th anniversary of the battle of St. Mihiel, one of the biggest offensives of the war and with the YD embroiled in the thickest of it.

Golf Partner Jails 'Machine Gun' Jack

Chiago, Sept. 7—Before Judge Thomas A. Green, with whom he once played golf, Vincent Terbardi, or "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn, was onvicted as a vagrant and sentenced to six months in the workhouse.

Gebardi is alleged to have been a member of Caponi's gang. A cash appeal bond of $10,000 was posted.

McGurn's attorney questioned him about golf, when Judge Green interrupted:

"I know what you are driving at. It is true I once played with McGurn on a public course. I was with two friends and McGurn joined us to make a foursome. I didn't know who he was."

Here's a Squirrel That Pays for Food

Philadelphia, Sept. 7—There's money in feeding peanuts to squirrels—at least for socially prominent Mrs. Andrew O'Neill of Chestnut Hill.

Mrs. O'Neill says one of the little animals appeared at her home and was given some peanuts. Several days later it reappeared and dropped a dollar bill—slightly chewed and wet but still a dollar—at the door.

Twenty-five states have voted against prohibition, none in favor of it. That which this column, guessing inaccurately, thought could not happen, apparently will happen, 36 states voting to abolish prohibition and bring back the strong as well as the light drinks.

The French, carrying out army maneuvers on the frontier, have only 13,000 men engaged, instead of the former gigantic marching armies, and operate with not a single soldier visible, except swift motorcycle riders and automobile drivers. The rifle and bayonet are discarded. Fighting men travel hidden inside swiftly moving, steel-armored "tanks," that roll over ditches and hills at 50 miles an hour, no infantry, no cavalry. The object is swiftest possible transportation from point to point, cannon and machine guns mounted on the steel tanks, airplanes guiding, spying and informing.

That is the new war. The United States will probably hear about it sometime in the year 2033, or sooner, in case we are attacked.

That a recent railroad wreck killed many is not surprising, since the train included a wooden car sandwiched in between steel cars. In an all wooden train passengers might have some chance in a collision. But in a wooden car, between two steel cars, passengers have as little hope of survival as so many flies in a match box between a sledge hammer and an anvil.

The Prussian minister of the interior announces a serious outbreak of the itch, respectable name scabies. Napoleon suffered from the itch when "that young Corsican," Bonaparte, was sent marching through Italy and Austria. Mr. Hitler might consider the outbreak of itch a sort of Napoleonic omen, on a big and encouraging scale.

Mae West Style Decried, Expert Hails Slim Lines

By DOROTHY ROE
(Universal Service)

New York, Sept. 7 (INS)—Miss Marjorie Howard, former Paris director of Harper's Bazar, gave the higher-ups of the fashion world the lowdown on Paris clothes this afternoon in the new auditorium of the fashion group of Rockefeller Center.

Five hundred of New York's leading stylists, fashion editors, buyers, advertising copywriters and big-time merchants, oh-ed and ah-ed with excitement as Miss Howard launched her description of the fine feathers of fall.

The sum total of the new mode, with its rich fabrics and classic lines, said Miss Howard, is this:

MAE WEST "NONSENSE"

Miss Howard pooh-poohed the rising tide of Mae West fashions as "fancy dress nonsense," and said that the clothes smart women will wear will be restrained, as usual. She went on:

"When fashion wants to stage a revolution she always chooses the month of August. Our last major revolution was in August, 1929, when skirts began to drop, along with a lot of other things.

"August, 1933, probably won't go down in history as a year of fashion revolution, but it's interesting, nevertheless.

"This Summer, as you know, all the designers went sweetly feminine with a vengeance. You couldn't recognize your best friend across the street, she was so completely submerged in frills.

SKIRTS THAT STRETCH

"But there was bound to be a reaction. And there was. So you see the classic simplicity of line in the new Fall clothes."

Speaking of evening fashions, Miss Howard described the "new slimness triumphant."

Highlights of the evening mode, she said, are:

The new slimness, with trimming either at neck or hem, but not both.

Necks determinedly high in front, but as low in back as the law allows.

The ingenious device of lastex evening skirts, that stretch when you step, thus solving the age-old problem of the hobble skirt.

A SUIT YEAR

As to daytime clothes, it's a suit year, said Miss Howard.

Fabrics are all-important, jutted shoulders are out, the dropped shoulder line is the big noise, and you mustn't have any fur unless it's good.

She summed it all up thus:

Rich fabrics, dark colors, rich furs or none at all, formal elegant costumes for afternoon, and—slimness triumphant.

RAID NETS 300 SLOT MACHINES

Nearly 300 slot machines were seized in one raid today in Cambridge by state detectives working out of Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop's office in Middlesex county.

Special Officer Joseph P. Breen and members of his Cambridge police liquor squad co-operated with the state detectives in the seizure, about which considerable mystery was attached, all of the raiders being reluctant to discuss details.

The huge seizure, a record thus far, was made at the plant of the American Candy Co. in Cambridge st., Cambridge, and while the machines were being carried out a crowd of several hundred gathered in the street.

The raid was on alleged information that one of the slot machines seized last week in a raid on a Wayland Inn was furnished by the candy concern. On that information and what was learned in an investigation yesterday, according to the district attorney's office, a warrant was obtained today in East Cambridge court this morning.

CURLEY URGES STRAW BALLOT TO END MAYORAL MUDDLE

Cost of Vote Put At $200 Per Candidate

Mayor Curley proposes that the expense of a straw ballot test to be sponsored by the Boston Evening American could well be financed by the candidates themselves, as an economy operation.

He estimated the cost at about $2000. There are about a dozen candidates in the field, and others looking to the opportune or expedient day on which to announce their aspirations. Perhaps the average cost to them would be $200 apiece.

"Better to spend $200 to know whether you could win or lose, than to spend $100,000 in a campaign and then lose it," the mayor observed.

Mayor Curley suggests that each of the candidates could nominate a personal agent or representative to supervise their interests in the accuracy of such a postcard straw ballot and to participate in the arrangements for it.

So far as is known this is the first time that the mayor of a great city has officially suggested a newspaper to serve as a medium for the public in their choice of their candidate for chief executive.

In any event, Mayor Curley's invitation is one of the most interesting campaign developments in the life of the city and will be read with eager interest because of its contribution as a possible solution to the muddled mayoralty campaign situation as well as the precedent it establishes.

Blames Scramble on Republican Solons

Mayor Curley said in a personal statement to the Boston Evening American:

"The non-partisan system of elections for Boston was adopted solely with a view to creating a situation that is in evidence in every mayoralty campaign, namely, to permit of the creation of differences in the Democratic party, and as a consequence of the division to allow a minorty candidate to obtain control.

"It is unfortunate that in dealing with this important phase of political life a Republican Legislature has consistently refused to change the law and permit of a bi-partisan system of nomination of candidates in Boston.

"Perconnally I have had one experience in the endeavor to name a successor and I do not propose attempting it again. I am not supporting any candidate for the mayoralty at present, but in the event that a canvass can be made, either by postcard or otherwise, or in the event that the candidates can agree among themselves on one man, I shall do everything possible to elect that man.

"Since Democratic Boston is entitled to elect a Democratic mayor, the importance of electing a Democratic mayor not alone from the standpoint of the welfare of the city and of the State is even more vital from the standpoint of the nation in that the Democratic mayor elected would unquestionably support the program and policies of our present great leader, President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Cites Own Defeat As Strong Argument

The letter to the editor of the Evening American in which Mayor Curley encourages the Boston Evening American to conduct the formal, secret, postcard straw ballot test of registered Democratic voters in order to determine the most available of the Democratic candidates is as follows:

"The multiplicity of candidates that have already announced their intention of running will, unless it is possible to concentrate on one candidate, result in the loss of the control of the city to the Democratic Party.

"I was a candidate for the mayoralty when this system of 'divide and destroy' was first introduced and as a consequence of the division created was defeated and a minority candidate elected mayor.

"Eight years ago, due to the numerous candidates, a minority candidate in the person of Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols was elected mayor. In that contest eight years ago, there was no question as to the outcome until almost at the eleventh hour a Democrat of standing was induced to permit of the use of his name and the vote received by him, some 30,000, made possible the election of Republican mayor in Democratic Boston.

"In the presidential election of 1928, Alfred E. Smith carried Boston by a majority of 98,835, and in the next presidential election Franklin D. Roosevelt carried the city by a majority of 101,533.

"The election of a Democratic governor and the re-election of the Honorable David I. Walsh as United States Senator in 1934 will depend in large measure on the Democratic vote cast in Boston, and the election of a Republican mayor in the coming municipal election might prevent either the election of a Democratic governor or the re-election of Senator David I. Walsh.

Sure People Will Welcome His Plan

"I recognize the futility of inducing men who have announced their candidacy to retire from the contest, since under the law they have a right to stand as candidates if they desire, but the importance of the election in its bearing upon future contests is such that the personal desires of any individual should be submerged for the benefit of the party and its leaders in the nation and state.

"It occurs to me that the Boston Evening American might father the movement provided the candidates will agree to contribute to it, whereby a postal card canvass of every enrolled Democrat might be conducted, with some individual representing each man who has announced his candidacy to act as supervisor of the canvass. If this is done I am quite certain that the Democracy of Boston as a whole, outside of the personal friends of the candidates, would eagerly welcome the opportunity of concentrating their efforts in behalf of one candidate rather than by dividing their votes among the candidates, thereby resulting in the defeating of all of the Democratic candidates.

"The expense involved, if divided among the candidates, would not only save the candidates considerable money, but should in addition prevent the loss of the control of the city to the Democratic party.

"Firm in the belief that the good sense of the men who have announced their candidacies will prompt them to agree to a postal card canvass of the enrolled Democrats and abide by the result, for the best interests of the Democratic party, I venture this suggestion, and trust the Boston Evening American will accord to it such consideration as in their judgment it may merit.

"Sincerely,

"JAMES M. CURLEY,

'Mayor."

CRISIS IN CUBA IS AWAITED BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, Sept. 7—While his Secretary of the Navy sped to Cuba today, President Roosevelt's decision on the question of armed intervention depended on events of the next few hours.

Cuban waters bristle with American warships. Marines, fully equipped, concentrated as an expeditionary force at Quantico, Va. Secretary Swanson hurried toward the Cuban capital aboard the swift new cruiser Indianapolis.

Hoping against hope that intervention would not be necessary, President Roosevelt in an unprecedented move had called diplomats of leading Latin-American nations to his desk.

"TRIGGER FINGER" FEARED

He indicated that if a government capable of ruling Cuba can be constituted quickly before some nervous finger sets loose a conflagration the vexing question of intervention will vanish of itself.

Present chances appear to favor any middle course that would save the situation so far as over 250,000 foreigners in Cuba are concerned, leaving Cuban affairs strictly to their own people.

But the administration frankly fears for the safety of the thousands of United States citizens in the island as well as the billion dollars of American capital invested there.

WHAT INTERVENTION MEANS

Far-reaching responsibilities would be involved in intervention, a right given the United States by the treaty that granted Cuba its independence after the Spanish-American War. It has been exercised only once—under the Theodore Roosevelt administration in 1906 to 1909.

Marines or troops once landed might have to stay for months or even years as that experience showed. Almost inevitably it would mean the loss of some American lives and capital.

Beyond all this is the fear that such action might be misconstrued by the other nations of Latin-America and a blight cast over the entire Roosevelt foreign policy with its emphasis on closer trade relations and a "good neighbor" attitude.

Argentine Press Backs U. S. Action

Buenos Aires, Sept. 7 (INS)—General satisfaction with President Roosevelt's action in sending warships to Cuba was expressed by the Argentine press today.

"We interpret the action merely as a precaution in defense of the lives and interests of United States citizens," La Nacion declared.

"We believe the measures are fully justified by the gravity of the internal situation in Cuba."

MURPHY FACES JOLO UPRISING

Manila, P. I., Sept. 7 (INS)—Less than three months after his arrival here, Governor-General Frank Murphy, formerly mayor of Detroit, today faced a difficult problem—an armed uprising.

Philippine constabulary and the fierce Moro tribes on the Island of Jolo, in the south of the Philippines, clashed, and 19 are known dead, with a score or more wounded.

The Moros have given trouble to nearly all governor-generals of the island since Taft.

Gov. Murphy declared he realized the Moro conception of justice necessitates revenge, but declared that law and order would be preserved.

"So far as a firm hand can solve the problem I want that done," he said.

Cuban Troops Oust Santiago "Reds"

Santiago, Cuba, Sept. 7—A group of Communists forcibly occupied the residence here of former Senator Gonzales Clavel and established their headquarters. They were quickly dispersed, however, by troops.

At Pinar Del Rio 300 laborers in the Matahambre mines went on strike, demanding wage rises.

BANKS TO GET BACK BILLION

Chicago, Sept. 7 (INS)—More than a billion dollars will be returned to the banks as a result of the deposit guarantee clause of the 1933 banking act, Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor told the American Bankers Association today.

The convention attacked the clause yesterday as a "radical departure" and passed a resolution demanding its postponement. It becomes effective January 1. O'Connor asserted the clause will obviate the necessity for the Postal Savings system, banish the fear of bank runs and permit a modification of cash reserves and greater credit extensions.

He announced the appointment by President Roosevelt of Walter J. Cummings of Illinois, and Elbert G. Bennett of Utah, to serve with him as the board of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

'98 VETS OFFER TO GO AGAIN

If their services are needed in Cuba "in the defense of peace," members of The United Spanish War Veterans, Spencer Hobbs Camp 67, of Danvers, are ready to set out immediately, Adjt. John P. Meade announced today.

He said the following resolution had been adopted by the veterans and sent to President Roosevelt:

"Resolved, that we have the same spirit now as we had in 1898 when we went to Cuba and made peace for their people and all the world. Therefore, be it said now that we will stand back of the President of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and if he desires our services we are ready 100 per cent to go there and make peace again. In 1898 we kept them quiet for 38 years and we can do it again."

Einstein Marked for Death by Nazis

London, Sept. 7—The Daily Herald, labor organ, says that an organization called "Fehme" which it said has Nazi affiliations, had put Professor Albert Einstein on its death list and earmarked a reward of 1000 pounds sterling for anybody who will "silence" him.

Precautions are being taken for the safety of the professor, who is staying with his wife near Blankenberghe, Belgium, the paper said.

Soviet Scoffs Story of Plotting in Cuba

Moscow, Sept. 7 (INS) — The Soviet government today officially ridiculed as "not worth denying" charges that paid Soviet agents had fomented the Cuban revolt of this week.

"Similar charges are always used wherever there is discontent among the masses in any part of the globe," a spokesman for the foreign office said.

Pinchot Prepares To Call Assembly

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 7—About a week after Pennsylvanians vote on repeal of the 18th amendment, authoritative sources say, Gov. Pinchot will call the legislature into special session to consider "about a dozen" controversial subjects.

Heading the list of matters to come before the general assembly will be state liquor control.

Ex-Candidate Fined As Hit-Run Driver

Salem, Sept. 7—Francois X. Auger, 43, former candidate for mayor, in district court was found guilty of driving a truck while intoxicated, and leaving the scene of an accident without identifying himself. He was fined $125 and appealed, after saying he was merely looking for a policeman.

Boston Man Bids Tax Sale Property

Worcester, Sept. 7—A block of 750 parcels of real estate, sold under the hammer for about $100,000, was purchased by Henry Chadwick of Boston. Chadwick, in the name of his wife, bid in all the tax titles disposed of for unpaid taxes and other city assessments.

Cubans Fear Intervention; Move to Suppress Mobs

would be no intervention by America.

But all sections of the more conservative political groups considered intervention inevitable unless there was an abrupt change in the tense situation.

Arrival of the United States destroyer Sturtevant at Santiago, where anti-American outbreaks and serious fighting had been feared, had a calming effect, according to messages today.

There were no clashes and no looting there during the night or early today.

Nevetheless the commander of the Sturtevant, after a conference with Americans there, decided that in case of danger all United States citizens should be concentrated at Las Cruces, on the outskirts of the city, where the destroyer could protect them.

Cienfuegos, where a bloodless coup resulted in the ousting of the mayor, was quiet today with two youths in charge of the city administration. Matanzas and Camaguey also reported no trouble.

Aware the entire Atlantic fleet of the United States Navy was being prepared for immediate action in Cuban waters if necessary, the Junta called a hurried meeting before dawn in a concentrated effort to pull order out of near chaos.

After a prolonged session the revolutionary leaders announced that on October 1 the University of Havana would be reopened, and that certain officers of the army would be officially restored to their posts.

The university had been closed intermittently in the last two years of the regime of ex-President Gerardo Machado. All army officers were relieved of their duties and placed under technical arrest when the present Junta took the governmental helm following the "revolt of the sergeants," early Tuesday morning.

U. S. APPROVAL CLAIMED

Commenting on the arrival of American warships, Sergt. Batista, leader of the new revolutionary group, said:

"The diplomatic representative of the United States (Ambassador Sumner Welles) has accepted our acts; we can affirm emphatically that there is no danger of American intervention as the ambassador has repeatedly said that Cubans themselves must solve their domestic problems."

An unidentified army sergeant broadcast a threat to fire on marines if they attempted to intervene. Several students issued like statements.

ORDERS ARMS GIVEN UP

The junta resolved at its meeting today to disarm all civilians. Many observers believed that would be impossible. Thousands of students, ABC members, OCRR men and others have pistols, rifles and machine guns for which ammunition was issued Monday and Tuesday and that they will refuse to surrender the weapons.

From the interior came reports that workers took over four sugar mills, three of them owned by American companies. The mills are the Chaparra and Delcias in Oriente Province, properties of the Cuban Sugar Refining Co., the Banaguas in Oriente, owned by the Antilla American Co. and the Hormiguero, a Cuban-owned plant with offices in New York under the name of Hormiguero Central Co.

The entire American colony and the scores of American tourists here showed particular interest in the terrorization of Mathew Molanphy, American head of the United Fruit Company in Havana, and his family, by radical members of the ABC, political group, and by angry stevedores.

U. S. WARNING HEEDED

Only the threat of Capt. Willmott of the Ward liner Morro Castle, that he would call American Marines to his aid within five minutes turned the mob back as it attempted to remove Molanphy and his family from the liner, where they had sought refuge.

The mob, said to be antagonistic toward Molanphy because of his attitude during a recent dock strike arbitration, retreated hurriedly when a military attache, Lieut. Gimperling, from the American embassy arrived to warn them the calling of the Marines would provoke intervention by the United States. He shouted:

The mob withdrew while the frightened Molanphy family remained below deck.

Of the 150 members of the American colony who had taken refuge in the National hotel, designated American territory, all but 40 returned to their homes last night but this number today had been increased to 60. They are guarded by armed volunteers from the American Legion post of Havana.

AMERICANS RETURN HOME

The Army problem is even more difficult. Difference of opinion obtains in the rank and file regarding the wisdom of their coup and a disposition of several detachments to back-track to recall the deposed officers and to ask the restoration of the De Cespedes government, is expressed.

Reports from seemingly reliable sources said Communist agitators have been busy in army ranks seeking to swing the soldiers into another revolution. Persons distributing handbills urging military men to join in a "Communist revolution" were arrested and sent to Cabana fortress.

Mobilization of the Americans in the hotel had been hastened by a radio broadcast from an allegedly Communist station. The speaker said:

"Comrades, the time is now nearing to act. Select Americans so that when the time comes you can leave them in their tracks when you meet them."

Army dissension and the hostility of conservative political leaders was an added threat to the shaky power of the Junta.

DESERTERS SELL GUNS

Army deserters were reported selling their rifles for $10 on Havana streets.

Automobiles filled with youths, the majority under 20 years old, sped through the city. Shooting was heard in the hurricane damage zone. Police explained that looters were being fired upon.

Santiago, where the American destroyer Sturtevandt stood by, was in the throes of a general strike. From Camaguey and Cienfuegos came reports of seething unrest. Arms stores were pillaged in Cienfuegos.

It was clear American intervention would be frowned upon by all political elements, and that there was strong sentiment for abolition of provisions of the Platt Amendment, which contains the intervention clause, from any new constitution to be made.

1250 Marines All Set at Quantico

Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., Sept. 7 (AP)—A regiment of 1250 Marines, fully equipped for field action, today went through military drill while awaiting Washington's next orders.

Officers of the hastily-assembled "Provisional Seventh Regiment" familiarized themselves with maps of Havana and Santiago, Cuba's two principal cities.

At the same time the khaki-clad regiment was issued 16 machine guns, eight to each battalion. In the rifle companies, one man in each squad of eight was given an automatic rifle and another a sub-machine gun.

Hundreds of thousands of rounds of rifle and pistol ammunition were prepared for quick shipment.

Britain Anxious Over Cuban Crisis

France Favors U. S. Attitude on Cuba

Paris, Sept. 7 (AP)—Official circles commented favorably today on what they called the extreme caution with which President Roosevelt is handling the Cuban situation.

They said they recognized the President's right to intervene under the Platt amendment, but that it was best to maintain a "hands off" policy except in an extreme emergency.

SEARCH ON FOR LOST BALLOONS

Chicago, Sept. 7 (INS)—Coast guards and the military here enlisted today in a search of the Great Lakes area for four balloonists still unreported more than 100 hours after taking off here last Saturday in the James Gordon Bennett balloon races.

Nun's Body to Be Exhumed for Canonization Proof

Chicago, Sept. 7 (AP)—Testimony to the virtues and miracles attributed to the late Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini, founder of the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, who died in 1917, is being heard by a tribunal of high dignitaries of the Catholic church, presided over by Cardinal Mundelein.

Mother Cabrini was a native of Italy, but became a naturalized American citizen.

The miracles attributed to her have occurred since her death and have had to do largely with cures of the afflicted. Two of the witnesses are Sister Delfina Grazioli of Seattle, and Peter Smith, 12, of New York.

After completing their work here some of the members of the tribunal will go to West Park, N. Y., to exhume the body of Mother Cabrini and examine it for any unusual signs of preservation.

As the hearing proceeds behind locked doors in a room of Columbus hospital, founded by the nun, two of the most important and interesting participants are the "devil's advocates" whose duty it is to point out possible objections as the testimony is given.

The "advocates" are the very Rev. George J. Casey of Chicago, and the Rt. Rev. Mgr. John Della Cioppa, who was sent from Rome for the hearing.

LORD GREY DIES IN ENGLAND

Alnwick, Northumberland, Eng., Sept. 7 (INS)—Viscount Grey of Fallodon, British foreign minister under two kings and the man who sent England to war against Germany in 1914, died at his home today.

He was 71. Death followed a lingering illness which became acute a week ago Saturday when intensified by an abdominal complaint.

Lord Grey, one of the eminent statesmen of his day and described as the last of a line of Victorian leaders, was temporary ambassador to the United States in 1919.

Dauphine, Police Adonis, Dropped From Force

The police "Adonis," Motorcycle Officer James J. Dauphine of Station 11, Dorchester, was dismissed from the department by Commissioner Hultman today.

A trial board of police captains found him guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer following his conviction for drunken driving in Lynn on June 27. Dauphine lives in Waumbeck st., Roxbury, and has had a patrolman's rating for five years during which he at various times has been referred to as the handsomest man in the department.

Lynn police arrested Dauphine after a three-mile auto chase while he was on his vacation and not in uniform. He was fined $125 and appealed. The case has not yet been heard on the appeal. Capts. McKinnon, Lewis and Fallon, comprising the trial board, reported their findings to the commissioner last night.

Heat Wave Hits Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 7 (INS)—Sweltering in an unseasonable heat wave that sent the mercury to 94, second highest ever recorded for the day, Chicago today was awaiting promised cooling winds from the north. Several heat prostrations were reported.

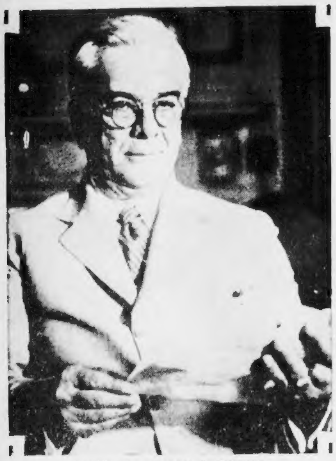
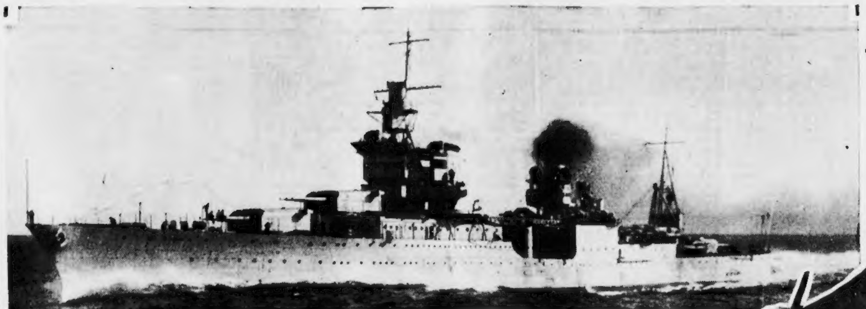
UNCLE SAM'S HUGE ARMADA WARNS CUBA: 'MAKE PEACE'



WHAT'S HE REALLY THINKING?
"How could they offer me safety when they cannot protect themselves?" is what the former President Machado of Cuba has to say on the situation. He escaped Cuba during first days of Cuban revolt. He's photographed at Montreal.



FULL SPEED AHEAD
The United States cruiser Indianapolis, with Secretary of the Navy Swanson aboard, is speeding over the waters of the Atlantic to the Cuban war zone, for the protection of Americans and American interests in Cuba. The ship is due to arrive outside Havana on Friday.

NAVY CHIEF OFF FOR CUBAN WATERS
Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson was yesterday ordered to sail immediately aboard the cruiser Indianapolis for the Cuban zone. He will supervise the actions to protect American interests. The order sending him to Cuba was given by President Roosevelt yesterday afternoon. He is expected to be in Cuban waters tomorrow.

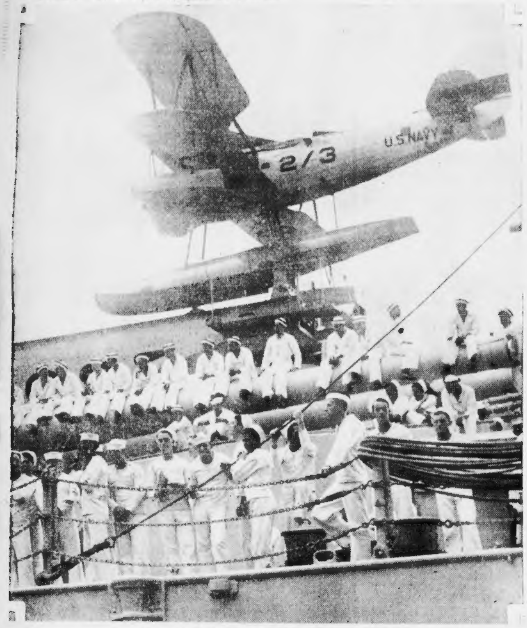
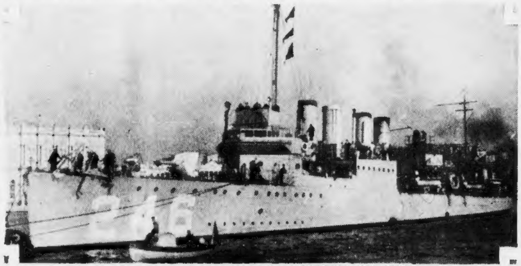
A trio of Uncle Sam's Marines, attached to the Boston Navy Yard at Charlestown, shining up their equipment for quick departure, should they be notified to move on. Left to right, Private Chester L. Griggs, Private William Lehtola and Corporal Paul J. Mills.



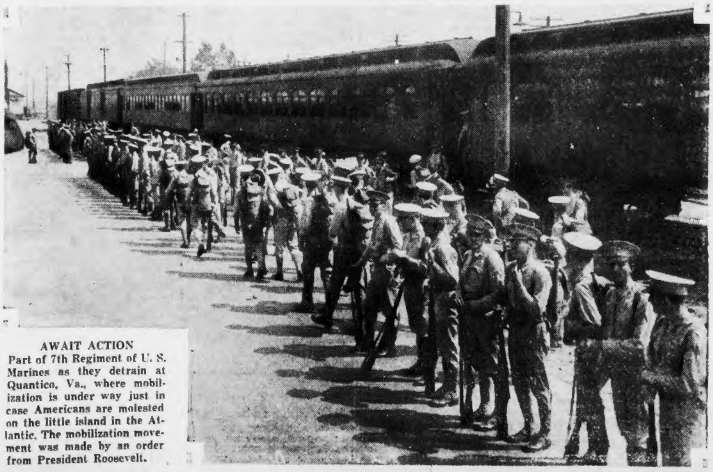
WILL MODERNISTIC AIRCRAFT AID ACTION?
Here's one of the hundreds of planes carried by the naval ships poised for flight. If it becomes necessary to transport U. S. marines to the danger zone, and if speed is necessary, navy seaplanes may be called into action. Hundreds of marines could be landed in Cuban waters from long distances in short order. However, this step will not be taken until the situation demands such action by the U. S. forces.



TO BE IN CUBAN WATERS TOMORROW MORNING
Included among the United States naval ships to be ordered to guard American folk and interests is the destroyer Bainbridge. It sailed out of Norfolk, Va., on rush orders.

FAREWELL TO BRIDE OF A DAY
It was goodbye to bride of a day when James M. Hurlburt, of the Marine force at Washington, entrained for the debarkation camp at Quantico, Va. Hurlburt kissed his bride goodbye and left with his detachment for the Marine base with the possibility ahead of going to Cuba. (International News Photo.)

WILL SHE FIRE A BROADSIDE ON CUBA?
The U. S. S. Mississippi, one of the several big fighting boats under full steam for Cuba. The photograph was made during target practice, while the Mississippi was sending out one of those deadening broadsides. She may be ordered to—fire—if things grow worse in Cuban revolt. She is expected to arrive in the Cuban harbor early Saturday.



AWAIT ACTION
Part of 7th Regiment of U. S. Marines as they detrain at Quantico, Va., where mobilization is under way just in case Americans are molested on the little island in the Atlantic. The mobilization movement was made by an order from President Roosevelt.

LEGION WOMEN ENDORSE BUY NOW

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Twenty thousand women members of the Legion auxiliary of the state today pledged their full support to Buy in September and Buy American in a concerted action of faith in President Roosevelt's New Deal, the Blue Eagle of his NRA, and in the campaign waged throughout the country by the Hearst newspapers to help restore national recovery.

Through the state department president, Miss Gertrude McLoughlin, the American Legion Auxiliary of Massachusetts has banded together to make woman's part in the national movement to rehabilitate American industry and American employment a reality.

WAR CRY ON AIR

In a radio address through Station WAAB, Miss McLoughlin called upon every one of the 20,000 women of her organization, in addition to all other New England women, to be "loyal patriots," to go out and spend to their utmost "to assist forcibly in the saving of our nation."

"I am appealing not only to our organization but to every woman of New England to join this Buy in September-Buy American campaign being conducted throughout the nation by the Hearst newspapers.

"It is up to the buyers of America to put this project over and the women are the buyers of America.

UP TO THE CONSUMER

"Get together, you loyal women of New England. Let us see once more the blue eagle of prosperity soar through the clear, blue sky."

Mrs. Eva Whiting White, president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, and one of Boston's most prominent women citizens, added her support to the campaign.

"The success of the drive for consumers' signatures up to date, proves that citizens are as strongly backing the NRA aims as have been employers and employees. The consumer realizes that in order to have money to be a consumer, dollars and cents must pass from hand to hand."

From the president of the Wilmington Woman's Club, Mrs. Ford Hanscom, came this supporting praise:

"In every great movement women have been called upon to bear their burden of responsibility. But never at any time was a woman's responsibility as great as it is today."

3 Held in Vermont For Deportation

THREATS STILL PRISONERS

Threats of solitary confinement brought quiet to the Middlesex County House of Correction at Billerica today following two nights of "yammering" over food and the placing of four prisoners in solitary.

The ultimatum was delivered by Charles Richardson, keeper, to nearly 100 prisoners who took part in the demonstration Monday and Tuesday nights.

Richardson admitted that sour beans were placed before the prisoners for Saturday night's meal in the dining room of the "de luxe" jail. He added, however, that other food was substituted as soon as it was determined the beans were not fit to eat.

The prisoners complained again when they were served what they deemed a light supper on Labor Day. The meager fare was served, Keeper Richardson said, because the men had been served a hearty meal at noon that day, and were in danger of ill health if another heavy meal was served at that time.

Appeals for Hatters

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 7—Charles Cullen, representative of the United Hatters of America, appealed to organized workers in Connecticut to wear hats.

FannieHurstBacks 'Buy American'

By FANNIE HURST

Author of "Humoresque," "Song of Life," "Five and Ten," "Back Street," "A President is Born" and other novels.

New York, Sept. 7—NRA has now reached a stage where its ultimate success is up to the ultimate consumer.

The ultimate consumer can help roll the NRA victory over the top by buying in September.

I believe the Hearst newspapers have provided a most constructive stimulus to the blue eagle campaign by initiating this movement.

Good intentions alone will not bring about a national revival. The job is one that requires mass effort, and each of us must help it along.

Every dollar spent in September will lend its weight in inclining the American scales the right way.

September Buy Move Helps Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Sept. 7 (US)—Definite indications business is improving under the stimulus of the Buy in September—Buy American campaign have already made themselves manifest, according to E. C. Mitchell, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association.

Auto Hits Truck, Occupants Hurt

Meriden, Conn., Sept. 7—Morris Jacobson, 44, and his son Albert, 17, of Springfield, Mass., were injured when their car was in a collision with a truck on the main highway near the Wallingford line.

They were treated for cuts and bruises at the Meriden Hospital, and were held for observation.

Rites at New Haven for Prof. Farnum

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 7 (INS)—Funeral services were held today for Professor Henry Walcott Farnam, 80, professor emeritus of Yale University and widely known economist, who died Tuesday at New Haven hospital.

Dr. Escar E. Maurer, pastor of Center Church, was to officiate, with burial in historic Grove st. cemetery.

NEW CHANCES FOR TREASURE

Since the Boston Evening American Treasure Hunt of last Sunday at Paragon Park crowds have been seeking another chance.

So, in compliance with the requests, another will be held next Sunday at Paragon Park, with 308 prizes. There will be 83 cash prizes, including several ten and five dollar Treasure Certificates in the envelopes.

Representatives of the Boston Evening American will do just as they did last Sunday, distribute regulation envelopes with Treasure Certificates calling for cash and other awards. On finding these Treasure Certificates, take them with one of the Treasure Hunt coupons from the Boston American of next Sunday and go to the Administration Building and receive your reward.

The Treasure Hunt Certificates will be hidden on the rides and other amusement devices, under seats, down the side and, possibly, you may find one in your pocket.

The Treasure Hunt will get underway at noon and continue through the night. There will be no admission charge at Paragon Park next Sunday. All one will need is the Treasure Certificate clipped from next Saturday's Boston Evening American and away you can go on the hunt.

The little tots that patronize the Kiddie Park inside Paragon Park may be just as fortunate picking up an envelope as the grown ups.

Clip your certificates Saturday out of Boston Evening American and get in the Treasure Hunt, Sunday.

Tom Croce Freed in Augusta Court

Augusta, Me., Sept. 6—Making a strong plea to Judge Frank E. Southard for leniency, Thomas Croce, East Boston, Mass., aviator, father of 11 living children, succeeded in having charges of flying too low and stunting over Maine's capital city discharged in the Augusta municipal court.

Girl Relents, Court Releases Brother

Helen McCabe of Malvern ter., Medford, had her brother, James, in Malden court today for using her automobile without authority, but in the midst of the hearing she relented, withdrew prosecution and brother and sister left court arm in arm. Perhaps James will have the use of the car tonight.

He had pleaded guilty and when Judge Davis asked for a statement by police, Chief Pierce said James had wanted to take the car, Helen refused to let him and he took it anyway. She had him arrested, other relatives bailed him.

$10,000 Suit Over Broken Bed Spring

Taunton, Sept. 7—Sarah Barclay of Fairhaven, who in September of 1932 was injured when a spring that had been fitted to her bed collapsed, depositing her on the floor, has instituted a suit for $10,000 at the office of superior court in this city against the Jackson Furniture Co. of New Bedford.

GOLD BASIS FOR WORLD URGED

Leicester, Eng., Sept. 7 (AP)—Eventual and cautious return to an international standard was advocated today by Prof. J. H. Jones, noted British economist, in his presidential address before the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Restoration of the gold standard is necessary to the progress of the world."

He added that he would not suggest an immediate return and expressed the fear that political considerations would force a restoration before what he described as the essential preliminaries had been properly considered.

Oct. 8 Starts "Fire Week"

New Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

MISS ALICE BURRAGE, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burrage whose glamourously beautiful sister, "Kitty," by the way, made such a hit in debutante circles a year or so ago and ended by marrying the catch of the season, Big Tim Clarke, is one of those young charmers who has everything.

She wears a neat and saucy white sailor perched over one eye at just the right angle and a tiny bouquet of field flowers as the colorful feminine detail. Her dress is of the sport model with tiny scalloped sleeves and a bright red belt—very striking and snappy and let it be added her success in the social world is outstanding.

Another young matron of the North Shore who is strikingly good looking and always faultlessly garbed is petite Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, nee Eleanor Fabyan, with such an air of aristocratic distinction about her and such lovely poise of manner. She has dark curly hair and deep lustrous hazel eyes, a charming low voice, and such chic in her well chosen ensembles. One of her smart rigs is a brown and white zig-zag striped afternoon frock that fits her slim and feminine figure to a nicety. With this she sports a nifty beige trimmed hat turned up in back to show her modish coiffure.

Mrs. Harold Chalifoux, another North Shore luminary who was before her marriage, Elizabeth Burrage of the North Shore Burrage's has lovely, naturally curly gold, brown hair, blue eyes and a particularly sweet smile. She is always tastelfully gowned. Her favorite shade is blue, which is most becoming to her. The navy ensemble with the nifty little matching sailor hat is a winner. Her favorite flowers are orchids.

Miss Priscilla Phelan who made such a glamorous and successful debut last season is looking particularly attractive again this fall. She is a tennis enthusiast and plays an excellent game. Her blonde coloring lends itself peculiarly well to grey and that new snappy model trimmed with sumptuous fox is very easy on the eye.

LET US CHANGE OUR FACES AND MOODS TO GO WITH THE INSPIRING FALL OF 1933

The Quest for Beauty as Interesting as It Is Desirable for All

By Therese Deschamps

IT WOULD be a rather simple matter to be the belle of the ball and the bright and shining star of our particular set, if we could go into our favorite shop and order a new face as easily as we get a pair of shoes. And yet, think how complicated that would be. Ponder on the competition. Perhaps it is just as well we have to struggle and strive for our success in this great land of plenty of potatoes and comparatively few orchids.

With patience, most of us can create a new and shining personality to take the place of the one we have been living with these last few years, when it has been so smart to be dowdy, so utterly the thing to act and talk poor

Now that that is all past history, let us throw away all the run-down heels in the closet, burn up all the old hats we wore with so much gusto, get the newest and smartest hair arrangement in town, and start in on our inner selves so we can think and act prosperous until we even reflect that cheery thought in the sparkle of our eyes.

Various Moods

Now we can sort our moods and concentrate on the ones we want to keep. There are pleasant ones which keep us in tune with the fields, the flowers and life in general. When these moods are brought out into the open we soon find we are popular and have fun. After all, fun does its share toward making the days and weeks pass pleasantly in a whirl.

So—with our better moods put back into circulation—how about some of the other things that handicap us from becoming what we would really like to be How about the scales? Do they tip a little on the heavy side? Diet and exercise will put us back into perfect form

Our Complexions

How about our complexions? Have they grown muddy with the eternal poor, poor, poor lament we have been promoting? A few expert facials, a determined will and the first thing we know we will be enjoying the reflection in our mirror and wondering how we could ever let ourselves get the doldrums to the extent of neglecting our better and brighter selves.

Even eyebrows will turn up a bit this fall, we understand. So here we go to do our round of the beauty shops and the cosmetic counters. Our reward will probably be ample in dividends every time we have a chance to take a good look at ourselves.

Since it is our business to keep an eagle eye on all the things which make women lovelier every day of their lives, do let us help you if we can. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will assist us in giving you the information you request. Write to Therese Deschamps, Boston Evening American.

Beauty Questions and Answers

Oily Hair

Question: My hair is prematurely gray and I have been troubled with dandruff. The hair is very fine, oily and thin. Can you help this condition?—D. B., Madison, Me.

Answer: Many times scalp disorders, dandruff, dry or oily hair and thinning hair, is caused by a rundown condition of the body. To correct this it is first necessary to find the reason. Massage your scalp with the fatty part of the fingers in a rotary motion twice a day. Keep your hair immaculate by washing every four or five days if it is excessively oily. A dry shampoo used every third or fourth time should help immensely. This is a long, slow process, but if you follow the treatment faithfully you should see an improvement Also exercise, eat wholesome food and get plenty of rest

Get a Permanent

Question: My hair is so straight that it is impossible to keep, or even put, a finger-wave in it. Can anything be done to improve this fault? Also, will you please tell me how to improve its oily condition.—C. L., Palmer.

Answer: It is possible that the oily condition is the cause of your not being able to keep a wave in your hair. Follow the routine suggested above. Of course not all of us are "blessed" with curly hair, but it is possible to train it so that it will not be straight. A very good way is to have a permanent and to keep after it so that when the permanent grows out it will have a natural tendency to curl. Immediately after washing have your wave set. Each morning wet and set it again. In fact, every time you comb your hair, set your wave. You'll find, after a few months, your hair will be easier to handle, but you will probably always have to give it attention.

MYRNA LOY — A GRACIOUS BEAUTY

We have caught Miss Loy in two of her pleasant moods. You will, doubtless, feel just as serene when you have waded into the invigorating spirit of fall, 1933, thrown away all those old clothes and patted your face back into nice, firm contours.

The Marry-Go-Round; Husbands

By HELEN ROWLAND

MANY A MAN who looks like a cipher to all a woman's friends turns out to be what his wife thinks a 100 per cent husband.

Helen Rowland

* * *

Funny how cheerfully a man will pay a lawyer a thousand dollars for untying the knot that he begrudged paying a clergyman five dollars for tying

* * *

It has reached the point where a man is almost proud of his bald spot, because it is at least one symbol of masculinity of which no woman cares to rob him.

* * *

* * *

It may be hard to believe, but the men were just as ardent in their love-making when the girls were all bundled up in petticoats, puffed sleeves and high collars, and when no man knew what a row of vertebrae looked like

* * *

The man who breaks his dates with you before marriage will break everything from his wedding vows to your heart afterward.

* * *

What has become of the girl who once married "for better or for worse"? She now has a daughter who marries for adventure—or alimony.

* * *

A man may forgive a woman for accusing him of something of which he is innocent—but never for suspecting him of his besetting sin.

* * *

Nothing makes a woman so green with envy as her husband's ability to turn over and drop into a beautiful slumber right in the midst of an exciting scrap.

Gracious Manner With a Good Credit Make Your Shopping Hours More Pleasant

By Charline Davenport

NOW THAT you have successfully packed up the children and arrived safely back in town, your next major effort, doubtless, will be to get some new clothes. There is nothing quite so awful as that end of the season feeling when everything is either limp from salt air or washed to an uninteresting hue.

Since many shopping days are ahead of you, may we take this opportunity of talking about such sensible things as credit and the gracious shopping manner? Naturally, when you want a dress, you want the best dress in town for the money. That is good old-fashioned woman instinct

And if you approach your favorite shop with a smile on your face and an interest in the merchandise which is brought to you, a tactfully placed hint at the right time will bring you, with rare exceptions, the dress of your dreams

Trained Saleswomen

It is well to remember that if you are rude about the dresses which are shown you, you are likely to find your way to the street without seeing the "very latest thing from New York"

Many of the young women who serve you so politely in the shops of Boston are college trained, and others step from as nice looking door-steps as the average so they are interested in cultivating only good customers for their shop—and they know their business

Sometimes it is wise to ask one of these expert young women just what she would suggest for you that is in good fashion. She should know her merchandise, through experience she knows customers like so many open books, and you probably will be more agreeably surprised at her choice, than not, if you have what is commonly termed as clothes sense

Clean Record

Another thing which is important in getting good service today is to have a clean credit record. Every sale is checked in the credit department, and unfair adjustments, unpaid bills and all the little disagreeable un's make you a risk These things stack up against you

The clothes this fall are very fascinating and every good citizen is in the mood to buy and look well dressed for a change—so here is to a pleasant shopping hat for you—may you have the time of your life

Boy Should Be Sure His Love Is Real

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For two years I have been going with a girl I love devotedly, but I have no real assurance that she loves me. And there is another young man, with whom she goes out, sometimes. I am afraid we are too young to consider marriage, being only 17 and 19. I tried giving her up altogether once, but I was so unhappy. And if she ever gave me up, I don't know what I'd do. Life would be no good to me.

I'm not working at present, and have never been trained for any work at all. My mother owns our very nice home, which I helped pay for, with money left me by my father. My parents were separated and my mother was not left anything. I still have a very good income. Please advise.

BILLY.

Dear Billy: I'm glad you realize 17 and 19 is too young to marry. Waiting, like most wise steps, may be hard to take, but downright common sense is not to be overlooked You will discover, if you do not marry now, whether this case of love is the real thing or only infatuation. You will also feel more responsible in bringing a wife home, if you have a job. With the National Industrial Recovery Act in force, there should be little difficulty in getting employment for those who have the necessary equipment. What would you like to do? What have you a gift for? Turn your energies to whatever business or employment attracts you. Don't just drift. The life of an odd job man is cruelly hard.

Match Shoes to Handbag and Watch Color of Hose

NOW THAT we are getting over that habit of being thrown together, with bag, gloves and shoes looking as if we had selected them blindly out of a grab-bag with little attention, if any, to whether one goes with the other—

And discover how smart and satisfactory it is to have everything match cleverly in an ensemble—

We will probably do this matching up to the Queen's taste and even have the tip of our feathers blend with the buckle on our shoes

We have illustrated an attractive pair of black suede shoes, cut high around the ankle and stitched across the toe in a way that makes this little boot flattering to the foot and very comfortable to wear

The bag is made of the same suede and trimmed with the same stitching. Hose blend in the new darker grey-black tones and, if you please, are of the variety known as "ingrain" That means that the silk in the stocking is carefully dyed before the stocking is made, it has a lovely sheen, launders without losing its youth and beauty and has a sheerness that is very flattering.

The gloves and the little white handkerchief are two more items which have to be carefully selected to make all the finishing touches as distinctive as the well-dressed woman desires

Black suede shoes and bag made of the same piece of leather and decorated with the same stitching make excellent accessories for the black and white crepe dress or the new oxford wools.

How to Make a Real Clam Bake With Chickens and Lobsters

By MARTHA LEE

"CAN YOU give me directions for a belated clam bake" writes a mere man from Middleboro—planning an anniversary celebration in Indian Summer And we are glad to give authoritative directions for a real "bake". Better clip it out for next year's use.

Clam Bake

A clam bake should be preceded by a clam chowder which can be made in advance and reheated

A bake can not be properly made for less than 10 persons and should have from 25 to 50. Its ingredients are clams, corn, sweet and white potatoes, chicken and lobsters. A hole should be dug in the ground, graded to the size of the bake that it is intended to make. This hole should be lined with good field stones put closely together. On top of them should be built a wood fire which should burn at least 10 or 12 hours in order to properly heat the stones. When the stones are heated they should be covered 3 inches deep in seaweed.

Takes an Hour

On top of this seaweed should be put the clams with the sweet and white potatoes. Then about 2 inches of seaweed and the chicken cut in pieces and wrapped in cheese cloth, another 2 inches of seaweed and the lobsters, another 2 inches of seaweed and topped off with the corn which must be shucked The whole is then covered with seaweed 4 or 5 inches deep and a heavy sail cloth placed over the pit and weighted down. By this method, it takes from 50 minutes to 1 hour

Originally, clam bakes consisted only of clams, corn and potatoes, but chicken, lobsters and sweet potatoes have been added so that they have come to be a recognized portion of the bake.

For good measure we are adding directions for the Clam Chowder, to be increased in quantity as necessary:—

New England Clam Chowder

¼ lb. salt pork
2 medium sized onions
4 cups diced potatoes
1 qt. clams
1 qt. milk
Salt, pepper
2 cups water

Cut the salt pork in small cubes and cook until crisp. Add the onions, chopped and sliced, and cook until slightly browned. Put in a kettle and add the potatoes, water and liquor from the clams. Cover and boil for 20 minutes or until potatoes are done, stirring often. Cut off the hard parts of the clams and chop. Open stomachs and remove the dark portion. Add the clams and milk, previously scalded, to the chowder and cook for 3 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serves 12.

Rockport's Most Painted 'Motive No. 1' Goes West

The old stone wharf and the house upon it at Bearskin Neck known as "Motive No. 1" to the thousands of painters and etchers who in the past half century have comprised the Rockport artists colony, is about to take a trip.

Paradoxically the trip will not be a voyage. Motive No. 1 is going to turn its back upon the restless waters of the north Atlantic into which Cape Ann and Rockport boldly jut and, trusting to ribbons of concrete rather than to lanes of the sea, will head for Chicago to represent the Edward Peterson post at the approaching Legion convention.

Motive No. 1 acquired that name years ago when it was still just the Hodgkins fish house. Some artists did it in oils, others reproduced it in water color or tried their hand at charcoal and the etcher's implements.

Gradually it became regarded as the first thing students ought to attempt in a serious way in the lexicon of art, as "Motive No. 1." With the passing of years so many artists have rendered it with such varying degrees of success that the scene has become familiar to gallery frequenters [illegible] country over.

Strictly speaking, of course, Motive No. 1 is heading westward only in miniature. Dr. Earl Green first thought of the idea and the Edward Peterson post adopted it. Such widely known artists as Aldro T. Hibbard, Lester W. Stevens and John M. Buckley, who now keeps the old house and wharf as his year round shop and studio, gave a hand. Permanent residents helped financially and today Motive No. 1 is about ready to take to the road.

Mother Is Sought in Baby's Death

DELUGE STALLS MELROSE AUTOS

Rows of stalled automobiles on the Lynn Fells Parkway, Melrose early today bore witness to last night's downpour which flooded the parkway and inconvenienced hundreds of citizens after their inspection of the new Melrose high school.

More than 100 parked cars were put out of commission when the rising waters drenched their ignition systems while their occupants were looking over the $750,000 school building.

The fire department towed about half of the cars to high ground, but the remainder were left until morning.

The flood bore out a prediction made some time ago by City Engineer Fred E. Ellis that the drainage system at this point was inadequate. The aldermen were requested to appropriate $30,000 to remedy the situation but failed to do so.

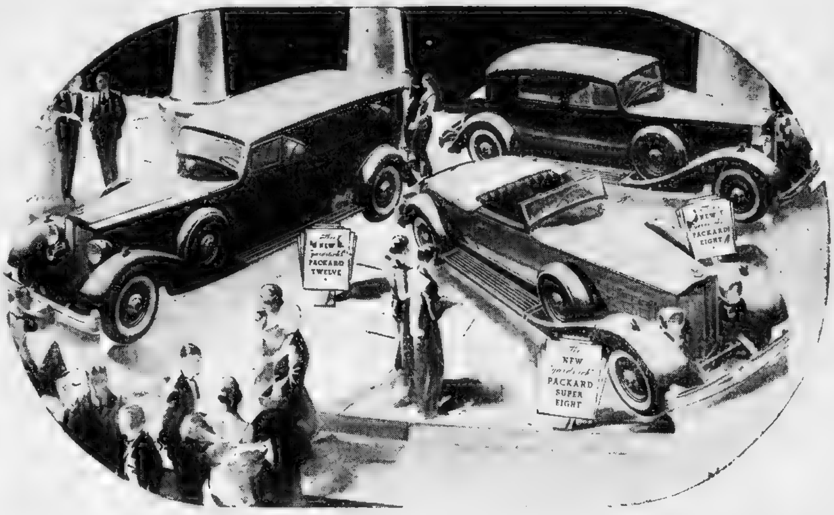
These new 1934 PACKARDS give the world a new Yardstick of fine-car measurement



To the fine-car buyer of today, this message is of greater importance than the mere announcement of a new series of motor cars.

For Packard, with its new 1934 cars, has given the fine-car buyer a new international yardstick—a new standard with which to measure all fine-car values, American and foreign.

And never before has there been greater need for such a yardstick. For the past three years have seen unprecedented changes in motor car manufacturing. Spurred by economic necessity, manufacturers have compressed a decade of progress into three short years.

Which of America's fine cars is today the finest? Which manufacturer has gone farthest?

Packard believes it is Packard. The new 1934 Packard is the greatest of the three great Packards produced during the depression—the finest car ever to wear the Packard name.

So Packard urges you to do this . . . ride first in a 1934 Packard. Then ride in every other fine car America can offer you.

Let the knowledge you gain in a Packard be a measuring stick which you can apply to every other fine car. Learn what Packard can give you today for your dollars. Then see if those same dollars will buy equivalent value elsewhere.

Your Packard dealer will gladly bring a new Packard to your home at a time that suits your convenience—either the new Eight, the new Super-Eight, or the new Twelve. Why not telephone him now?

And when you thrill to the performance of this great new car, remember that Packard's longer life is money in your pocket. If you buy a Packard, plan to keep it at least five years. Five years from now, your Packard will still give reliable performance. And five years from now it will still be smart—for the traditional Packard lines are ageless, unaffected by the whims of passing styles.

Yes, ride first in a Packard. Compare it with every other fine car in your motoring experience. Compare it with the finest cars on either side of the Atlantic.

Then—and only then—decide which of America's great cars you want to make yours.

BYRD OFF FROM BOSTON TO LITTLE AMERICA SEPT. 25

This Is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I find what seems to me an eminently sensible paragraph in a new book by Harold Nicolson, called "Peacemaking" (Houghton Mifflin Co.), the tragic story of the Versailles Conference by an insider, a young Englishman, whose father was a diplomat and who could view the proceedings with some of an expert's eye.

I have not read the book. I have snitched the paragraph from another reviewer, who was so fortunate as to have been sent the book. It goes as follows.

"The essential to good diplomacy is precision. Nothing could be more fatal than the habit (the at present persistent and pernicious habit) of personal contact between the statesmen of the world. Personal contact breeds, inevitably, personal acquaintance, and that in its turn, leads in many cases to friendliness. There is nothing more damaging to precision in international relations than friendliness between the contracting parties. Diplomacy is the art of negotiating documents in a ratifiable and therefore dependable form. It is by no means the art of conversation."

It is refreshing to hear someone discuss international relations in this vein, with the emphasis on the head rather than on the heart, on courteous formality instead of on informal personal contact. There can be no doubt that the diplomacy of the post-war decade has been at a lower level and less effective than that of the old school.

An exchange of views in formal notes has two advantages. In the first place everything is on record and subject to scrutiny. Who will ever know what Mr. Hoover said to Mr. MacDonald in that famous fallen log conference at the Rapidan camp? Who can be altogether sure what Mr. Roosevelt and the visiting English and French negotiators said at the White House last spring? In both cases the public statement and the overt act seemed to be surprisingly different from the informal agreements. In both cases foreign opinion had apparently been led to expect something far more favorable than what was later held officially to be the American position.

In the second place the results of friendly conference will in the long run depend on which of the two chummy conferees can exert the greatest amount of friendly charm, personal magnetism, salesmanship. One imagines the taciturn, bashful Hoover, accustomed only to command gruffly, theatrical MacDonald. One can imagine any foreign diplomatist at a loss before the compelling, high-powered friendliness of Mr. Roosevelt—and later sorely and unexpectedly deceived by one of his ultra-vigorous official notes. Better the cold and precise language of diplomatic communication than the friendly chat, so warm and vague, so unintentionally slippery and oblique.

I have often thought that the collapse of high-powered and over-expanded American business in 1930 may have been somewhat due to our American habit of settling things in the warm and romantic atmosphere of the luncheon table. With three or four well-fed men, all flushed and benevolent with steak and french fries, replete with apple pie and coffee with cream, soothed by fat cigars, oozing with the friendliness induced by a good meal, it is not difficult to be large and vague and optimistic and expansive. Hence the crash!

The one evil about politics that can never be cured is the fact that it depends on personal relationships and personal favors. The lonely and austere man does not last long. Wilson was a notable exception. But it must be remembered that so long as Wilson kept himself secluded and wrote notes, he was a colossal success. As soon as he subjected himself to the barrage of personal relationships from the jolly and quick-witted Lloyd George and the blunt and tenacious Clemenceau, he was like the gentleman on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho.

Many a good solitaire player comes to grief in the rough-and-ready intimacies of poker. It is not for nothing, apparently, that the great diplomatists of the past invented the protective coloration of ceremony. More and more it would seem that we of today are children, psychologically speaking, compared to our elders.

* * *

Even a dramatic critic or a literary reviewer does well to refuse to know actors and managers, authors and publishers. The amiable scandal of the log-rolling criticism of the Algonquin circle of a decade ago taught us that lesson. H. L. Mencken once said that all the first rate writers he knew were insufferably dull and stupid in social intercourse, while most of the second and third raters were charming fellows. But not all critics have Mencken's ferocious honesty and independence.

One cannot help wondering if all this international exchange of students and professors is really wise. Distance may not only lend enchantment. It may also keep the head cool.

136,000 PUPILS FILL SCHOOLS IN BOSTON

4600 Teachers Greet Students as New Year Opens

An army of about 136,000 children, manifesting various degrees of enthusiasm or lack of it, advanced on the public schools of Boston today, at the start of another school year.

While to many the prospect was nothing to cheer over, others, particularly girls, attired in new clothes welcomed the distractions of school and the winter's round of activities.

According to Supt. Patrick T. Campbell, an increase of about 2000 children over last year took place, largely in the high schools and in post-graduate courses, due to the depression and inability to obtain work.

Department and school heads have been at work since Tuesday and yesterday 4600 teachers reported for duty.

Supt. Campbell said that there was some crowding in a few sections of the city, but accommodations in general were equal to the demand and every child was given a seat. This year only 80 portable buildings will be used for classrooms, as compared to more than 100 last year.

New additions were available at the Dorchester high school for boys, Emerson school, East Boston; Randall G. Morris school and Robert Gould Shaw school, West Roxbury, and Boston Latin school. Additions to the Latin school make it the finest school building in the city, according to Supt. Campbell.

Al Duffy, Jr., Weighs In Early, 8-Pounder

As the old man bends so does the twig incline, and although this old saying is a bit scrambled, and probably backwards, a young Duffy, keeping the eerie hours of his press agent father, arrived at Baker Memorial Hospital at 5 a. m. today.

The principal actor in the hospital play "Another Duffy" was born to Mrs. Al Duffy, wife of the Shubert press agent in Boston and the former Beth Stuart of Chicago, former Ziegfeld show girl who appeared here last in "Show Boat."

Young Duffy weighed in at eight pounds and three ounces, without wraps, and promptly ignored all NRA tenets by going to work at sleeping on a 22-hour-a-day basis.

Two Duffy girls, one 7 and the other 9 years old, are waiting at home to see the pretender to their throne.

Boston Leads In Irish Tourists

Boston leads American cities in sending tourists to the Irish Free State, Mayor Curley was told by John P. O'Brien, general manager of the Irish Tourist Association of Dublin who visited City Hall. He was accompanied by P. Galway O'Brien, consul-general at Boston for the Free State.

Judges Get Rebuke for 'Praise'

A drastic change in the method of handling minor automobile law violations was recommended to the special legislative commission studying government economics at the State House today by William Flaherty, representing the Boston Bar Association.

Flaherty declared that the district courts should be relieved of this work and full disciplinary authority vested in the registrar of motor vehicles. Not only would the change in the procedure leave the district courts free to handle their regular work, he said, but it would bring about a considerable saving in court expense.

Judge Charles L. Hibbard of the Pittsfield district court and Judge Philip Parker of the Brookline court, said that the circuit court idea if put into effect, would tend to create a chaotic condition.

Their testimony in regard to the satisfactory way in which these courts are working received a sharp setback when Rep. William Baker of Newton interrupted to say:

"We don't want to listen to praise. What we want is something constructive."

PRISON BOOK SUSPENDED

Because of an attack on Frank A. Brooks, former chairman of the parole board, publication of the State Prison magazine "Mentor," has been suspended for a month by order of Commissioner of Corrections Francis B. Sayre.

Warden James L. Hoggset was also directed to assume full responsibility for censoring the contents of the magazine.

Commissioner Sayre's action was taken after Warden Hoggset had apologized to Brooks for the offensive article which had appeared in a copy of the "Mentor" a month ago.

LARSON ENTERS EVERETT RACE

Rep. Joseph L. Larson of Everett is a candidate for mayor of that city in the primaries to be held on October 17.

Larson has served 10 years as chairman of the legislative committee on education, and four years on the committee on rules, the speaker's cabinet. He has been an advocate of state operation of automobile insurance fund with a $17 flat rate on each car irrespective of locality.

With Reps. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., and John P. Higgins, Larson was one of the committee on conference which in the last moments of the legislature supported Governor Ely's policy of transferring $9,500,000 from the highway fund to general revenue.

Crickets Ride Back to Fire House on Exterminators

Crickets are not so dumb.

Residents of Irving st., Lynn, as well as the firemen attached to the Commercial st. fire house learned this today when they awoke to discover that uninvited company had taken possession throughout the night.

There was no question that the cricket situation in the shoe city had reached a critical point. Proof was given when firemen who have been fighting the pests for a week with fire and water, discovered that the leaping pests had sought protection in the fire truck and that the firemen had driven them right back to the station with them.

In a letter from City Councillor James J. Doyle to Mayor J. Fred Manning it was revealed that the crickets were a few leaps ahead of the enemy, Doyle stating in his letter that houses along Irving st. are gradually being filled with crickets that have fled the dump ahead of death-dealing flames.

So alarming has the situation become that Deputy Chief James E. Scanlon prepared to go to the mayor's office today and admit that his fire-fighters were ready to surrender the fight against the pests and suggest that some professional vermin exterminator be engaged.

HONEYMOON IN JAIL ALONE FOR THIEF

Bride Can See Burglar Each Week for Four Years in Dedham

Howard C. Cook's honeymoon with a bride of a month has been brought to an end—at least for the next four years and eight months and possibly longer.

Instead of greeting his pretty bride at their love nest in Glendale rd., North Weymouth, Cook will see his wife for periods of a half hour each week through the iron bars of Dedham jail.

Cook began paying off the law today in Quincy court, where he pleaded guilty to 12 charges of larceny and accepted jail sentences totaling four years and eight months imposed by Judge Avery.

The sentences were imposed for breaks in Quincy and Braintree. Next week Cook will be returned in the same court to face 15 additional burglary charges brought by the Milton police.

Until he lost his job in the Fore River shipyards and had no money with which to support a wife, Cook was regarded as one of the most respected young men in Weymouth.

Without money for food or rent, Cook suddenly turned to a career of crime to support his bride, and for a month he proved to be one of the most successful housebreakers ever taken into custody.

Working only in the daytime, and while his wife believed he was engaged at a legitimate occupation, Cook preyed only on the homes of the wealthy in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton, Lexington and Bedford.

His loot, including diamonds, silver house furnishings and money totaled more than $7,000.

In a tour with Quincy and Milton police inspectors yesterday, Cook pointed out the houses he had entered and named pawn shops and other places where he had disposed of most of the loot. Property valued at $6,000 has been recovered. In his home, more than $2000 worth of property was recovered.

France Tries U.S. Vet for Arms Smuggling

Grasse, France, Sept. 6 (US).—Leon Holmes Albin, American veteran of the United States and French armies, was tried here on charges of trafficking in arms to Spain and Syria.

The three judges reserved decision until next week, allowing Albin to continue at liberty under the bail set after he had spent three months in jail.

Albin, 37, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Albin, of San Francisco, has steadfastly maintained the charges are a frameup.

The two men met him in the hotel lobby and turned the subject of conversation to horse racing, Dr. Gwinnell told police. He said he made a few bets and won. Then, he added, the men demanded proof that he had sufficient money to have covered any losses and the $8200 he carried in vacation money was produced.

"Teacher's Pet" Outlawed In New Teaching Rules

The days of "teachers' pets" are over if all those who attended the 16th annual convention of instructors at State Teachers' College in Bridgewater closely follow ten new rules for teaching.

2—Don't wear clothes that are out of style or of colors that are too suggestive of mourning.

3—Have a sense of humor, even though the joke is on you.

ADMIRAL TO USE TWO SHIPS ON NEW TRIP

Two-Year Stay Near South Pole Expected to Yield Discoveries

By Associated Press

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and a crew of scientific adventurers will sail from Boston Sept. 25 seeking to wrest remaining secrets from the last great home of mystery—the enormous waste lands of the Antarctic.

Byrd made the announcement today in the White House after he had spent the night talking over his plans with President Roosevelt. He then departed for New York to hasten preparations for the exploration which he expects to take two years.

Byrd will sail with 35 men each on the Pacific Fir and the Bear, the latter to be used to crush its way to the edge of the ice in Little America, and the former to serve as a base ship north of the ice pack.

ALL "BUY AMERICAN"

The addition of the Pacific Fir was made in the interest of economy, Byrd said, as it permitted the expedition to carry all of its supplies from the United States, including an enormous quantity of gasoline and oil. Practically everything used, he disclosed, was bought or donated in America.

The expedition will be Byrd's second to the bottom of the world. He first started from New York in 1928 and his famous flight over the South Pole was made in 1929, [illegible] on the ice in Little America. The return was in 1930.

Previously [illegible] Byrd had flown over the North Pole, explored the Arctic and had hopped the Atlantic ocean with three companions.

The personnel of the party this year, Byrd said, includes several who were with him on one or more of his previous expeditions and others who are awaiting their first glimpse of the earth's most barren region.

EX-SCOUT IN PARTY

Two who weathered the Antartic winter of 1929 are sure to make the present trip. They are Paul Siple of Erie, Pa., who was chosen by the Boy Scouts of America to make the last journey. Siple, no longer a Boy Scout, will go as a biologist, while Harold June of Stamford, Conn., a noted pilot, will go as chief of aviation.

Byrd said he expected much scientific data would be gained, including information concerning weather conditions affecting South America and the world at large.

It was hoped to discover a new continent, he said, in addition to the one found before, to ascertain if the South Polar mountains were a continuation of the Andean range; to map hitherto unexplored territory and to determine if the frozen land once was as tropical as India.

The only contact by the party with civilization will be through a short-wave wireless set on which messages will be sent out about once a week.

The equipment, Byrd said, would include two planes, one capable of carrying a large party, 150 sledge dogs and a [illegible] tractor and snowmobile truck with two rear wheel treads and skis in front.

OPERATOR 13 By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

READ THIS FIRST

Gail Loveless, experienced actress at 20, was sent into the Confederate lines as a Union spy. Disguised as a quadroon laundress, she deceived everybody, including Capt. Jack Gailliard, gallant spy in the Confederate service, who was ashamed to find himself so deeply stirred by her saffron loveliness. But Vespasian Chancellor, gangling, hawklike chief of Confederate spies, presently exposed her and she fled for her life, stealing Gen. J. E. B. Stuart's horses. She stole also the clothing of a little farm boy to make herself appear to be a little Negro stable boy.

Outwitting the pursuing Chancellor and Gailliard, she captured them one at a time and led them toward the Federal lines, where all knew they would be hanged. But on the way they stumbled upon the dreadful spectacle of a Union army hanging a Confederate spy, and Operator 13, sickened, freed her prisoners. Before he rode away, Gailliard kissed her passionately and she kissed him. Then she rode into Emmettsburg, Maryland, at dusk.

Exhausted, she gave Gen. Stuart's horses to a young man who spoke the pass phrases of the Northern secret service, and, at his advice, lay down under a tree to sleep. The man, a Southern spy, brother of the one hanged that day, betrayed Operator 13 to the beautiful but implacable Lady Greensleeves, Confederate spy, who was living in Emmettsburg. Lady Greensleeves promised to "take care of the young Yankee actress" until the Confederate cavalry should arrive to hang her. Then she advised the young man to leave Stuart's horses with her.

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

"If I leave them in your barn," he insisted, "some Yankee lancer may gobble them before Stuart gets here tonight."

"We must take that chance. It's more important you get to Jackson with Stuart's message and my information."

"I reckon you are right, ma'am. I ceraínly do hate to leave those horses . . . And that actress they call Operator 13. You'll see she's arrested?"

"I'll attend to her," said Lady Greensleeves. "Hark," she added in a whisper. They stood listening, heard no sound. "You'd better go."

A MARTYR

"I'm sorry," she said. "Your brother died like a southern soldier and is numbered with our martyrs in this dark hour."

"Yes, ma'am, he, he is. There was a priest with him—at the end. He is on his way to God, I reckon." He stood staring into the darkness. "Well, ma'am, I reckon I better go to Stonewall now."

"May God comfort you in your grief."

"I thank you kindly, ma'am."

He turned and descended the veranda steps, unhitched Skylark and Lary Margrave, and led them away toward the stables. After a while he reappeared and climbed into his own saddle.

"May avenging angels ride with you," whispered Lady Greensleeves fiercely.

He bowed low in his stirrups, touched his horse and cantered away westward.

He had been gone an hour or more before Lady Greensleeves left the veranda, went into the house and upstairs and leaned over her sleeping child.

Mrs. Morris came into the corridor and spoke cautiously: "Have our people arrived, Rosalie?"

"Not yet."

"If they don't hurry all the Yankee cavalry in Maryland will be here," whispered Mrs. Morris. "Is that actress spy of theirs still asleep under the trees?"

"Yes."

"If Jeb Stuart doesn't catch her she'll ruin him yet," said Mrs. Morris.

GRIM THREAT

"I'll see to it that she contrives no more murders," said Lady Greensleeves, descending the dark stairs.

"Where are you going, Rosalie?"

Lady Greensleeves went into the back parlor, opened the drawer of a lacquered table, took a loaded pistol from it, and came lightly back into the hallway.

"I'm going up the street to see whether this she devil is still there," she said; "and if she is, I'm going to detain her there until our cavalry arrives."

She went out of the house, catfoot, let herself out of the gate and moved stealthily up Main st toward the sycamores. As she reached the sleeping figure, there came a sound of scurrying hoofs nearer, nearer, and two lancers galloped by.

As the racket of hoofs and whistling snap of lance-pennons died away to the westward, a slight stirring behind her attracted Lady Greensleeves' attention, and her delicate fingers tightened on the pistol she clutched, buried in the billowy folds of her poplin skirts. Then she turned and saw what seemed to be a ragged Negro lad standing at her elbow.

"Evenin', missus," said Operator 13. "Is yuh see me sleepin' in de grass?"

Lady Greensleeves said calmly: "Who are you, little colored boy?"

"Mah names Moses, ma'am. I'se a contraband, an' I is jes' a-honin' tuh run yuh errants, lady."

"Did you write a letter to me?"

"Yaas'm. Is yuh Miss Howe, ma'am?"

ADMIRATION

"Is yuh did yuh chores, ma'am?" inquired Operator 13. "Hit's mos' near mawnin', lady, an' I'se jes a-honin' tuh wash de front walk an' de gallery."

Lady Greensleeves searched the shadowy, smiling features of this seeming Negro lad. If this, truly, were that murderess actress bent on the destruction of Jeb Stuart and all his riders, the disguise and voice and acting were perfection.

"Where did you hear of me?" asked Lady Greensleeves.

"Who told you that?"

"Yaas'm, lady."

Both heard it. Through the veins of Gail Loveless crept the icy chill of fear. She looked into the lovely eyes of Lady Greensleeves.

"Don't move," said Lady sleeves,

"Don't move," said Lady Greensleeves, as the pistol glittered in her white hand.

There fell a terrible silence between them. In the frightened ears of Operator 13 the blood pounded like the tread of oncoming horses. Or was it really the trampling of hoofs she heard?

Lady Greensleeves said: "God shall deal with you tonight as you have dealt with our nearest and dearest. And one of these was hanged today. And you betrayed him to the gallows! And now you are planning to betray 2,000 American lads to the merciless Yankee sabres! You spawn of Judas."

"I have—have betrayed nobody t-to the gallows," Operator 13 stammered. "Vespasian Chancellor and—and Jack Gailliard were my prisoners; but I let them go."

A DIFFERENCE

"You came here to make a prisoner of me, did you not?"

"They would not have hanged you. But your people will hang me unless you let me go." The heavy beating of her heart was like loud blows on her young breast, in her deafened ears roared the ground shaking shock of horses.

Nearer it sounded, and nearer in the misty star light a dull stubborn rhythm of thousands of marching horses. The dark earth trembled under foot.

Suddenly a nearer clatter broke out from the eastward, and with a rattling rush two Yankee lancers—Corp. Anderson of Company D and Private Dougherty—appeared spurring through the street toward the Gettysburg road.

As they galloped past there came a startled shout from the darkness ahead of them; then a pistol shot and the scream of a lanced horse. But the two gallopers from Col Rush tore through the Confederate column and sped on.

All around her boiled a turmoil of horses and men, as Lady Greensleeves, pistol in hand, searched fiercely for the ragged figure that had disappeared among the shadowy horsemen crowding Main street. For the Yankee actress had vanished amid the milling riders.

But now the long column was reforming, straightening out, moving on through Main street.

The nuns from St. Joseph's and the priests from ancient St. Mary's, alarmed by the uproar, were huddling near their colleges under the trees, trying to understand what was happening to the old Revolutionary town. And among them cowered Operator 13 behind a mossy wall, terrified? but fascinated, thrilled with that strange pleasure born of peril.

MOUNTED SHADOWS

It was already midnight. The phantom rebel vanguard, guns, led horses, prisoners, had gone on through the old town street; but a ghostly regiment in column remained halted there a band of mounted shadows among shadows.

Operator 13, scarcely understanding what she das doing, yet already stirred and directed by that strange intuition which forestalls reason and purpose in such as she, stole out of St. Mary's dusk and crept toward the Chambersburg road. And saw, in the starlight, a troop of federal cavalry moving at a walk toward the rebel-choked town.

"Yes, sir, but they got those in Chambersburg."

"They are our own men," he said.

"They are Jeb Stuart's!" she insisted.

"Very well," he said. "I'll go and see."

"I'm trying to tell you that Emmetsburg is full of Stuart's cavalry," she wailed, "and you won't believe me!"

"That is impossible," he retorted; "Stuart went on to Gettysburg. And if you're a rebel agent sent to mislead us, you're in a lot of trouble right now, my lad." He leaned over from his horse, took the seeming Negro boy by the collar, motioned to a corporal to discard his lance and follow: "Keep your men halted; I'm riding forward to take a look."

Operator 13 squirmed in his grasp, begging and pleading, scared almost out of her wits; but the obstinate Philadelphian, with all the arrogance of aristocratic bravery, rode on, dragging her along.

The horror of their situation so shocked her that she gave no thought to herself but sprang down the slope, calling out to them, until a lancer drew bridle, dismounted, caught her by a ragged sleeve and dragged her with him to the little column of men and horses.

"Halt! Halt!" she repeated in an agonized voice. "Can't you understand? I tell you the town is full of Jeb Stuart's cavalry passing through! Listen to me. I'm Operator 13 of the United States Secret Service and I know what I'm talking about."

"Halt!" said a quiet voice; and "Halt! Halt!" was repeated along the line until the horses stood motionless.

An officer turned his mount rode up beside her, leaned down close to her and struck a match. It burned blue, then brightly, illuminating her face and his.

She recognized him instantly, naming him hysterically. "Captain Cadwalader, do you remember when you came to Major Allen's headquarters in Blanton's house. I was upstairs with Pauline Cushman. I am Operator 13."

INCREDULOUS

"You saw cavalry in Emmettsburg tonight?" he demanded.

"Yes."

"Did they wear blue uniforms?"

Down the dark road and straight into Main st they moved; and suddenly Captain Charles Cadwalader found himself riding close to a halted column of cavalry in blue uniforms.

"What regiment is this?" he inquired.

The unexpected and shocking reply caught him like a blow in the face; but he managed to weather it like a Philadelphian and a soldier. "Oh, I know that," he said carelessly, "but I'm asking you what is your regiment!"

There was a silence of suspicion; a restless movement among the halted horsemen. The lives of these two Union cavalrymen quivered in the balance.

Then somebody said: "By God, he talks like a Yankee!"

(Copyright, 1933.)

Can anything save this brave but stubborn Union officer, the soldier with him and the girl spy he has dragged along into this ghastly situation? They are three in the midst of an army of enemies. Read tomorrow what happens to them.

AN ARMY'S SAFETY, A GIRL'S LIFE AT STAKE

Union lancers and cavalry frantically hunted Stuart's men. Skirmishes were frequent and soon Emmettsburg began to fill with Confederate soldiers. Operator 13, weary almost to death, strives to warn Capt. Cadwalader when he rides in with his men. But the rebels, garbed in blue, made him think they were Union men and he suspects the girl of leading him into a trap.

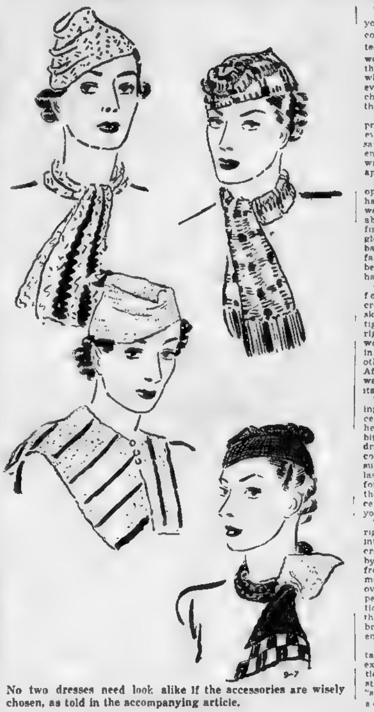
Hand-Crocheted Accessories



No two dresses need look alike if the accessories are wisely chosen, as told in the accompanying article.

Your first street dress, which you'll wear without benefit of a coat, and later on under its protecting warmth, will be of fine woolen, sporty-looking tweed, or the infinitely practical knit. But, whichever your choice may be, every dress needs carefully chosen accessories to complete the ensemble.

Women are unanimous in their praise. No two dresses need ever look alike! Not even the same dress in the hands of different women! What one will do with accessories will change its appearance completely.

At our American coutoure openings the great numbers of hand-made accessories shown were impressive. If you browse about accessory departments in fine shops you'll discover hat-glove and bag, and scarf-and-bag ensembles that are perfectly fascinating. But the largest number will prove to be scarf-and-hat sets.

One famous designer shows four very successful hand-crocheted versions, which are sketched. One, a soldier's fatigue cap at the top extreme right, comes in an unusual openwork stitch. The scarf matches in color as well as design. Another, top left, has a distinctly African feeling, notably in the way the crown is draped and in its height.

The scarf has one predominating barbaric splash of color. The center model, knitted to fit the head closely, and worn quite a bit to one side, has a soft front drape in the crown. A matching collar goes with this. Here's a suggestion for rejuvenating your last year's low-necked woolen, for this collar buttons high on the throat in this season's accepted manner. Necklines are up, you know!

The last hat, in the lower right-hand corner, has the most intricate treatment of all. The crown is raised a bit in the back by a fold that narrows down in front, with the fashionable front movement. The fold is then rolled over carelessly. The designer repeated the hat stitch in the section of the scarf that goes about the throat. Each tie end has a bright color contrast and different stitch.

Besides their fashion importance, these smart accessories express our increasing appreciation of fine hand work—an instinct which seemed temporarily "shelved" during the past depression days.

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

IT IS not uncommon to see an individual walking on the street with a large part of his shoe cut out. Usually this is a sign that somebody is suffering from a common affliction of the big toe, known as "ingrown toe nail."

Dr. Copeland

It is an extremely painful condition. Yet most persons continue to suffer and fail to get expert advice. They resort to home remedies, and the hole in the shoe is made in the hope that this will cure the disorder.

It is true that the pain is temporarily relieved, but the condition cannot be cured in this simple manner. Ingrown toe nail, as its name implies, is the growth of the nail into the skin and soft tissues of the toe. Usually it can be traced to carelessness in cutting the toe nail.

A SIMPLE REMEDY

A nail that is trimmed too closely and left with a sharp or ragged edge will rub against the skin. This leads to inflammation and infection. If neglected, pus accumulates underneath the nail and produces the final symptoms of that painful affliction called ingrown toe nail.

Once pus gathers underneath the nail, there is produced marked pain, as well as great discomfort in walking or standing. At times it may be so severe as to prevent the sufferer from sleeping at night.

Before pus forms the discomfort can often be relieved by a simple procedure. Press the flesh away from the edge of the nail and insert a small piece of absorbent cotton under the nail. It is best to moisten the cotton with a mild antiseptic.

A moist dressing, preferably of boric solution, should be applied every day. Cotton should be kept in place until the nail grows to the end of the toe. Then remove the cotton and trim the toe nail smoothly and evenly.

When pus is present permanent cure can only be obtained by complete removal of the nail. This is a simple operation and can be performed in the doctor's office. It is done under local anesthesia and there is little pain and discomfort. In this operation the matrix, as well as the nail, is removed. The wound heals within ten days and soon a new nail grows in place.

Bear in mind that many persons suffer from ingrown toe nail and other foot troubles because of improperly fitted shoes. Never wear shoes that are too small. The proper shoe is broad and gives ample room for movement of the toes. It should fit snugly in the arch and give firm support to the foot. The heels should be broad and low.

Too many men and women suffer from ingrown toe nail and other painful disturbances of the feet. Remember that the general health is dependent upon the health of the feet. Guard your fet against infections and your feet against infections and better health and avoid many painful, unpleasant hours.

ROCKETT BECOMES PRODUCER

Film Pioneer Will Supervise Next Pictures to Be Made by Clara Bow, Lillian Harvey

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

[illegible] by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 7—Once in a while, in this mercurial and none too certain business of ours, a pioneer gets a break. Then we rejoice. Al Rockett, who has been a producer in the picture business for 19 years, was signed today by Sidney Kent on a two-year contract. He becomes a Fox producer.

After Al sees that Clara Bow sticks to her orange juice diet for "Whoopla" and the picture is safely tucked in the tin can, he will concentrate on Lillian Harvey. The Harvey picture, "Lottery Lover," [illegible] on an original story by Maurice Hanline and Siegfried Herzig. It [illegible] musical, and Lew Ayres has the heavy romantic male lead opposite Miss Harvey.

Chatter in Hollywood:

A bum optic has kept Gary Cooper from making any close-ups in "Design for Living." Gary is suffering from makeup poisoning and his right eye has been almost closed. Meanwhile Director Ernst Lubitsch is trying hard not to be pessimistic. First the picture was held up by the strike, then Miriam Hopkins, leading lady, became critically ill and now Gary. Maybe Ernst's first hunch that "Design for Living" shouldn't be filmed was right.

Merian Cooper has taken himself off to a hospital for a tonsil operation. He hasn't been well for some months and his physicians recommend that he get rid of his offending tonsils. Lyle Talbot's accident in "The Son of the Gods" has made it impossible for him to finish his engagement. Johnnie Mack Brown steps into the role and also one in Ruth Chatterton picture. Reverse End at Rockingham: The Scene From Behind ↕ Tableau in The Official Starter's Box

By AUSTEN LAKE

Rockingham, Sept. 7—"Mark number seven for morning [illegible] 16-stone man with a thrust jaw and a penetrating brown eye. "Add five, two and eight and have those same boys up." As the foreman of the ground crew jotted down the data and stowed the card in his hip pocket, one noticed that his forefinger is gone at the second joint. ("Pinched off in the starting gate at Bowie.")

All the ground crew are veterans, stubble chinned with pin points of white light in their narrow eyes, and bearing various scars of their dangerous trade. The business pays $20 a day and they have been with Milton, moving from track to track, for many years. One or two have silver plates in their skulls where vicious nags have struck out with their forefeet while being wheeled into line.

Seeing the races at Rockingham from the starter's platform and watching the plunging rears as the double quartet of horses recede in a screen of dust, is like watching a moving picture in reverse. But the most noticeable thing is the complete indifference of Milton and his starting crew to the outcome, once they have launched the animals successfully. And after a moment of suspense while the horses are churning up the track, the crew takes small notice of the fleeing nags or the monkey men who cuddle over their ear.

For them the distant moan of the crowd, the insane bleating of the band and the mad merry go round, is something detached from their interest and before the horses are in the stretch, Milton and his men are exchanging low voiced comments. ("That black mare hung fire"; "She had an apprentice boy up"; "Remember her at Miami?")

Getting the Field Away No Child's Play

A strict disciplinarian is James Milton, czar in his corner of the little world at the far corner of the starting chute, who dominates the jockeys like a veteran Latin tutor in a boys' school. Some of the boys are seam-faced, gaunt and with fevered eyes that carry a perpetual curse, the effect of their eternal struggle against flesh and natural growth. Others are cheerful schoolboys with peach fuzz on their glowing cheeks and a knack for easy giggling, chubby infants who peep nervously toward the starter's box and are forever bleating, "No chance sir," in shrill squeaks as the horses are wrangled resentfully into the starting gate. One of the boys, a harassed child with his face in a pucker as though about to cry, raps his small boot heels against the ribs of his huge, snarling mount as it jams sideways in its starting stall. "No chince, no chince, Misteh Jim," he wails.

"How long you been ridin' son?" asks Milton, leaning down from his perch and bending a fatherly eye on the lad.

"Since Pimlico, sir," replies the boy, suddenly abashed at being addressed by the terrible god in the brown flannel coat and the leghorn hat.

"Well, get back off that horse's ears and sit down," ordered Milton. "Get out here early in the mornin' and I'll show you how to sit."

Six of the [illegible] handlers [illegible] stalls and standing as placidly as though waiting cafeteria service on an order of oats. One, rolling back its lips in a curl of mischief and dancing in circles refuses to fit his lathered stern into the opening and his veteran boy swears savagely between clenched teeth.

"You there in the green silks," bellows Milton so that his voice echoes from the opposite bank in a fainter, mocking "you there." "Another yip and I'll set you down." The boy apologizes, but his teeth are still clenched and his lips mouth as though in silent prayer.

In the far distance across the infield, the crowd is straining its eyes, silent in nervous tingle of expectancy. Underneath the stands in the counting room of the pari-mutuels, bundles of currency are being checked and the odds tabulated by men who work with their mouths clamped around unlit cigars. On the judges' tower, a little jury of squat figures peer toward the starting point through powerful glasses.

Split Herrings for Saddles; Silver Slivers for Shoes

For an instant the eight horses belly their gates evenly and in a flash Milton springs the trap, with a wild "Yee-ee-ow." The animals lunge out, churning the loam into spurting black fountains and wedging gradually toward the inside rail. The stooping jockeys, flailing their crops, look like little colored balloons as the air catches their silks. A pleading sob rises from the grandstand. But Milton and his ground crew, their work complete, have already dismissed the race from their minds.

"We had those next boys before?" he asks his foreman, thumbing down the order of the next race, while the crowd is wailing a frenzied prayer to the horses that carry their money. "This boy Shaker is a novice," answers the foreman, dispassionately, turning his back on the scene as the mounts finish in a close huddle.

Now under the judges' stand the boys, saddle and blanket under their arms, pass through the official weighing room while a shrewd faced official checks them on the scales. The jockeys' quarters, behind the pavilion, is a sanctum that is presided over by a gimlet eyed argus named Gordon Morrow, who is to racing what the caddy master is to golf. Long rows of ridiculously small saddles hang on wooden pegs, in size, weight and shape like split salt herrings. On the walls, above, are reference charts of the colors and patterns of the stable owners and it is Morrow's duty to see that every rider is properly dressed by his valet, lest he draw a fine from the stewards. The chat is foreign. ("He sez you gotta carry a coupla leads and a shim"; "He run up into the switch and I draw three days.")

Near the entrance of the grounds in low-lying sheds, weather-scarred, are perhaps a million dollars worth of horses, nibbling at the wooden walls of their stalls. Padlocked wire screens shut them off from meddling hands and dishevelled stable hands loll nearby on bales of bedding, keeping a sleepy eye on strangers. A farrier is fitting a sleek maiden to a new set of shoes, frail steel slivers that tinkle as the shallow nails are driven in. The animal lifts its forefoot like a dainty lady receiving a manicure. The air is burdened with ammonia and the smell of resin.

B. U. GRID LIST SETS RECORD

In an informal questionnaire sent out by Dr John M Harmon, Boston University's new football coach, to determine the number of men who would live at the field house and report for opening practice, the response was far greater than expected.

To date there have been 38 answers and all but three have stated that they will report Monday for the opening session. The other three will report a week late.

All but nine of this group have asked to be permitted to live at the clubhouse on the co-operative plan. Last year there were only 20 boys who lived at the field and this increase in numbers is a healthy indication of pre-season interest according to "Doc" Harmon.

With 35 men certain to report Monday the chances are that the list will reach 50 by the time they go out on the field. This number will break all opening day practice attendance records as the largest squad in the past has been only 28 men.

Anderson Drives Crusader Gridmen

Worcester, Sept. 7—Head Coach Edward N. Anderson today ordered stiff contact work and blocking on a kicking drill, with the announcement after the workout that there would be two sessions on Saturday and probably a scrimmage on that day for his Holy Cross gridmen.

Braves Jinx Riding on Moore's Injured Digit

By JOE CASHMAN

The Giants' erratic flinger broke Randy's little finger of the right hand with a dizzy in-shoot a week ago today. Up to and including that game the Warriors had won 12 out of 15 starts. Since then, they haven't turned in a triumph and have dropped from second to fourth place.

When our heroes fell before the Cubs in the opener of the three-game series out here, it was their fifth straight defeat, unless you are charitable enough to regard Sunday's tie as having broken the string. That's the longest victoryless stretch experienced by the club all season.

WANTS TO PLAY

Randy vowed if the Braves lost the opener to the Cubs he would be back in the lineup this afternoon, no matter what the doctors said, and he pleaded so earnestly last night for permission to return to action, that he was sent to get the advice of a local physician.

The report was that he shouldn't play for another ten days, but the game Texan refused to accept it. He put the issue squarely up to McKechnie.

"There's no pain in the finger now," he told Boss Bill. "I can take off the splint, put on a little tape and go tomorrow. It's up to you. I want to play."

It's probably just as well Randy can do with two or three days more rest and its doubtful whether he could turn the tide in the Windy City if he were in perfect shape.

It would have been profitable for the Braves if they could have settled with the Cubs before the race started for just three victories at Wrigley Field this season.

They would have joined three times as many triumphs as they have rung up in nine attempts in the Bruins' den and saved the expense and wear and tear of three trips to the Windy City.

TRIBE PATHETIC

They seemed to have a good chance starting out in the opener. Fred Frankhouse, usually a puzzle to the Cubs, was on the mound and opposing him was Bud Tinning, who had been knocked out of the box in six previous starts.

The Atlanta Thrush was great, but too late. He yielded only five singles and a run the rest of the way. Ironically enough, the tally charged to him proved the margin of victory as his mates, after being limited to three singles in eight frames, rallied in the ninth and put over three.

Ed Brandt, who owns the only Boston victory of the season at the local orchard, was due on the firing line this afternoon. But hear the rest of it before you start to cheer. Lonnie Warneke was to be present for the Cubs.

And if Brandt failed to finish, Ray Starr would not succeed him. The young right-hander was hit by a line drive in the exhibition game at Fort Wayne and sustained two broken ribs. He is likely through for the season.

One-Armed War Veterans Battle on Scottish Links

Edinburgh, Scotland, Sept 7 (AP)—Forty-four golfers who had left an arm on one of Britain's far flung battle fronts came from all parts of the United Kingdom today to participate in the first championship for one-armed golfers.

Thomson played beautiful golf in getting his 82, carrying the green, 262 yards from the tee, on the 18th hole, while A. L. Goundrill of London scored a birdie two on the 140-yard eighth, his drive landing eight feet from the cup.

SHARKEY STUNS SPAR MATES

Chicago, Sept 7—Jack Sharkey dispelled any doubt that might have existed regarding his present physical condition today by stepping into the ring at Trafton's swat foundry and giving a dazzling exhibition of the manly art of mutilating mugs.

The former heavyweight champion, visibly in condition that he could not have attained except by weeks of training activity, stepped around like a lightweight as he jabbed, hooked and crossed his sparmate, Chester Matan, a young husky from Boston.

The Bostonian was particularly impressive with right-hand counter smashes which may, or may not, be the tip-off that this is the weapon he plans to use against King Levinsky in his first comeback effort, the scheduled 10-round windup of Promoter Sammy Wolff's boxing show at Comiskey Park a week from Friday night.

New Dates Set for N. E. Round Robin

President Claude B. Davidson of the New England League today announced a revision of the round robin dates to determine the league championship. New Bedford's unwillingness to play through the series made it necessary to shift dates for the three remaining teams, Lowell, Worcester and Taunton.

Under the new schedule, one of the three teams will be forced out and the two teams with the highest percentages will then meet for the championship.

Tonight—Lowell at Taunton (5 30)
Tomorrow—Taunton at Worcester (5 30)
Saturday—Taunton at Lowell (first game, 1 30)

PIRATES STILL IN FLAG FIGHT

P[illegible], Sept. 7 (INS)—[illegible] into the fourth conflict with the New York Giants today, Manager George Gibson took occasion to state he certainly believes his team still had a chance to win the National League pennant race.

"We are still six and one-half games behind the leaders," said Gibson. "I realize the Giants are in a dandy spot. But they are on a perilous journey at the present time. A few breaks and we might have copped all three games played so far in the series.

"If we can win the next two games, the Giants will do a lot of worrying on the remainder of the trip. However, we will play out our string in with them and will continue to fight all the other clubs right down to the finishing line. There is so much uncertainty in baseball, it pays to play out all strings."

Gibson did not care to discuss his plans for next year. It has been hinted in Pittsburgh he will not be at the head of the club net season. Gibson prefers to leave this matter between the Pirate owners and himself.

The report that Fred Lindstrom would succeed Gibson was considered a wild one at the Pirate offices. Pie Traynor, present captain of the Pittsburgh Club, doubtless would be elevated to the management in case Gibson does not return.

Slaughter Wins

Winnipeg, Sept. 7 (AP)—Sammy "Kid" Slaughter from Terre Haute, Ind., coasted to an easy decision over Sig "Battling" Tracey, Winnipeg, in ten rounds.

Mrs. Moody Shouts for Help When Photographer Appears

The former net queen became almost hysterical and shouted for help when the stranger forced his way into her room. He ran from the hospital as attendants rushed to the room.

Dr. Willis, father of Mrs. Moody said it would be six months or longer before his daughter would be able to return to the courts. She must remain quiet in bed for at least three weeks.

Willie Ogg and Henry Baldwin jumped Eddie Murphy and Newman Drake at the start, going out in front with a three-hole lead at the turn, which they retained, coming up with a 3 and 2 verdict.

Searles Reed and Bill Larkin met with little opposition from Harold Kakn and Willie Howard and the same is true of Don Ditchie and John Rosenfield in their match with Malcolm Jenney and Fred Woods, both winning by [illegible] and five margins.

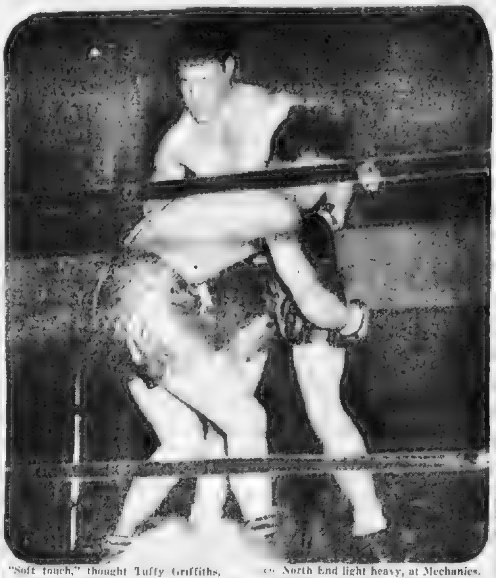
AS SHUCCO BANGED TO RING'S TOP RUNG



"Soft touch," thought Tuffy Griffiths, facing you, as he mixed with Tony Shucco, North End light heavy, at Mechanics. Inside, the local boy found it tough.

Referee O'Connor indicates the corner for Tony to return to as Griffiths wonders what's making the ring stand on edge. Tuffy was knocked cold for one of the rare times of his long ring career. He finished a technical kayo victim, draped over the ropes. Shucco's on top of the fistic heap, now.

SHUCCO EARNS FIRST RANK BY K. O.

By JACK CONWAY

Tony Shucco of the North End with the face of a great artist or writer rather than that of a fighter used his intelligence to knock out Tuffy Griffiths of Chicago in four rounds at Mechanics Building.

Shucco was ten pounds lighter than Griffiths. Tony's weight was announced as 177 pounds against [illegible] pounds for Griffiths. The [illegible]thful and handsome Shucco [illegible]ed that a boxer with speed [illegible] brain does not [illegible] to worry a [illegible] ten-pound [illegible] handicap.

[illegible] knocked the rugged Griff[illegible] out with a [illegible] hand punch [illegible] the jaw. It was the last of a [illegible] of similar punches.

GRIFFITHS COLLAPSES

Early in the fourth round, following a fast left hand attack Shucco drove a hard right hand smash to the jaw. Griffiths went to the canvas in a heap. He made two attempts to get up, but they were without success. As Referee Joe O'Connor tolled off the count of eight Griffiths clambered to his feet. His legs were uncertain, his brain groggy.

Shucco then proved he is a great fighter. He did not rush Griffiths wildly. Instead he picked the [illegible] for his punches. A left hook whizzed to the jaw, a right landed high on Tuffy's head. Griffiths tried to cover up, but he could not [illegible] Shucco off. A crashing right shot to the chin, and Griffiths went down for the second time.

Tuffy was confused. He was up at the count of five, but it was fighting instinct alone that enabled him to carry on. Shucco forced Griffiths back against the ropes and showered him with solid left and right hand punches to the jaw.

Lose With Smile!

Jack Conway's famous Magic Coin is quite happy that Tony Shucco tossed it for a loss when he knocked out Tuffy Griffiths in four rounds. Shucco's victory means new interest in Boston boxing. The coin's 1933 record:

21	6	.800

Griffiths tried to cover up, but he could not halt the fury of his rival's attack. Tuffy was helpless and was on the point of being knocked down for the third time when a towel came flying from Griffiths's corner. It was the token of defeat.

POPULAR WIN

Referee Joe O'Connor quickly stepped between the boxers, and declared Shucco the victor. It was a popular victory. Shucco received a splendid ovation from the crowd. Griffiths was also cheered when he left the ring.

Shucco showed in the first round he was Griffiths' master. He stepped out front at the bell and socked Tuffy with a series of left jabs to the face. Griffiths rushed at Tony, and drove a couple of hard smashes to the body. It was Shucco's round.

Griffiths did better in the second round when he countered with a jarring overhand right to the jaw. He later was on the receiving end of some solid left jabs and hooks.

In the third heat, Shucco countered with a smashing right hand uppercut. He also scored with left jabs to the face. Griffiths kept plunging forward, but he wasn't landing any effective punches. At close quarters he tried to count with short blows to the body, but Shucco usually succeeded in grabbing his arms.

One of the most spectacular knockouts ever delivered in a Boston ring was witnessed by a small crowd of some 2000 fans. It was the opening show of the Burke Sporting Club. What the show lacked in a financial returns for the promoters it made up for in the way of thrills for the fans. Most of the spectators were Shucco rooters, and they swarmed around Tony after his victory.

RODRIGUEZ WINS

Al Rodriguez of Quincy carried too many guns for Dutch Leonard of Waltham and was awarded the decision after eight rounds of battling.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

—By BILL GRIMES

Forced to withdraw from the Charles River invitation at the last minute, Jack Drake, who was scheduled to play with Eddie Murphy, sent his brother, Newman, in as a pinch hitter. Although he is one of the quietest and most retiring players in the entire field, Newman Drake came through like a seasoned veteran yesterday and should be even better today.

Jack Ingersol, a former Dartmouth back and one of the best that ever wore the Green, who is playing with W. Pentleton, at Charles River, has been signed up by John Shepard, 3d, to broadcast football games for WNAC.

Eddie Daly, who has sat in all local championships this season will leave for Cincinnati on Saturday for the Nationals. Eddie is pulling for some Bay State player to come through but in the event of the localites hitting the deck he will get behind Georgie Dunlap whom he has picked as the next amateur champion of these United States.

Frank Craven and Pat Mullaney and Emery P. Stratton and Charlie Crane are favored to reach the finals at Charles River. They are the lowest handicapped teams in the field and would make an ideal final match.

Without exception the players are all praising the condition of Charles River. They all admit that it's harder but a far fairer test of golf.

Noticed that all of the leading players and most of the lesser lights have a "non-stub" club in their bags. This club, which was [illegible] by Ray Snyder and Emery Stratton has cut many [illegible] off the scores of good and poor golfers and is in great demand.

S. Harold Greene and Ray Gorton spent a pleasant morning yesterday at Charles River waiting for their opponents in the One-Round-a-Day division to put in an appearance. They were scheduled to start at 9 o'clock, but they did not get underway until afternoon.

Judging from the shot we saw him play, A. Howie Ross, Marshfield has hit his stride. During most of yesterday's round, Ross carried Perley Chase right up on his shoulders, but the Winchester midget began to click late in the afternoon and was an important factor in the second-round victory.

Even before the rain started to fall, Charles River was as wet as though there had been a heavy precipitation. The course is easily four or five strokes harder than before the watering system was installed.

Although the One-Round-A-Day division is supposedly for golfers with fallen arches, there are three outstanding niblick wielders in that class, namely Ray Gorton, Perley Crosby and Alex Chisholm.

Donnie Schmidt and Bobby Knowles thought they were sitting on the top of the world after they had eliminated Billy McPhail and George Muir but they ran afoul of a pair of tartars in Ben Black and John Shepard, 3d, and were on the short end of a 20-hole match.

For a recent bridegroom "Hap" Kern is standing up remarkably well under the two-round per day strain. Teamed with Jack McCarthy, "Hap" went through two rounds yesterday and is still in the championship flight.

EVANS, FALLON 'LEFTY' VICTORS

Wayland, Sept. 7—Brice Evans and Griffin Fallon, former champions, were among the winners this morning in the first round of match play for the New England left-handed golf championship at Presidential C. C.

E. O. Turner, medalist, had an easy time with M. MacDonald of Providence, winning by a 7 and 6 margin.

HARD WORK FOR B. C. GRIDDERS

With all of the misfit shoes turned back and the extra long shoe laces cut to proper lengths the Boston College football squad were to swing into hard drills today at University Heights under the direction of Head Coach Joseph McKenney.

Portly Joe scheduled the newly reported sexter of Flave Tosi, Ike Ezmunt, Charley Donahue, Al Lut[illegible], Ted Galligan and Bobby Ott for their first full day of football.

McKenney will continue to bend his energies toward rebuilding h[illegible] forward wall which was sadly depleted at Graduation last June. He is being assisted by Gus Plausse, [illegible] tackle on the Eastern champions of 1929.

Plausse has been casting a fond optic on Johnny O'Lalor of the Back Bay. O'Lalor was a pupil of D. Leo Daley at the Boston English High several years ago and was put out of varsity competition by a back injury early in the season. He looms as the strongest guard candidate so far to take the place of Maury Whalen, who took his sheepskin last June. Another potential guard is Gerry Slamin, who w[illegible] probably fill in at the other side of the pivot.

End Coach Bill Ormsby will continue with his forward passing drills until he can produce a capable passer to assist Quarterback Johnny Freitas this Fall in the passing attack. Ormsby, however hasn't uncovered anyone who can match the veteran signal caller of the Eagles.

"If they have courage and speed, a small backfield can accomplish wonders in a football game.. It's the old story of brains over brawn. It looks as if we'll average about 165 pounds behind the line this campaign," said the newly appointed coach.

Taxpayer protests have effected the change in many instances.

Smart Traders Are Now Looking for Upward Movement

By WALL ST. SPECTATOR

Wall street is blowing hot and cold again but seems to be getting over its befuddlement. Stocks are evidently at the crossroad and will soon have to show whether they're going up or down. Smart people believe the market is rounding out a bottom for a new upmove. A new slogan to describe the present situation has been coined, better business or better inflation. Which pretty well sums it up. One of the big ex-bears is reported to have taken a position in Union Oil of California.

SUGAR CODE IS FAVORABLE

Spectator hears that those who have studied the proposed sugar code declare it bullish on the sugars.

The company is understood to have discovered a new extensive oil field in its territory. Its custom in the past has been to sell at a fancy price.

Chicago & North Western has received the assent of more than 70 per cent of the road holders to its October refunding plan. [illegible] still optimistic [illegible]

Much ado has been made about the dropping of the freight surcharges at the end of this month. It might be pointed out they were granted when the rates were heading for the cleaners and their elimination indicates the sheriff has been definitely given the go-by.

The carriers are going to raise as many rates as are being reduced. Furthermore traffic is still the biggest thing of all, and it has been holding very well.

End of Saturday Closings Is Seen

No action was taken by the governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange at a special meeting on the extension of the Saturday holidays which were ordered from July 29 to September 2. Brokers interpreted this to mean that the exchange would be open for business this Saturday unless another special meeting of the governing committee should be held before the end of the week.

2-Day Delivery Plan Adopted for Boston

The Boston Stock Exchange has just adopted the two-day delivery plan according to announcement by Sec. George A. [illegible]. The governing committee['s] resolution follows:

"Voted, that beginning Friday, Sept. 8, 1933, and thereafter until further notice, deliveries will be made to complete transactions, whether through the Clearing House or directly at members' offices, on the second full business day following the transaction. That is, sales and purchases of Friday and Saturday will be cleared and delivered or delivered on Thursday; of Monday, on Wednesday; of Tuesday on Thursday; of Wednesday on Friday and of Thursday on Monday.

"As an exception to this second day-delivery plan, United States government bonds may be traded in for delivery on the first full business day following the day of the transaction, provided it is stated at the time of making the transaction that it is for 'next day'."

A holiday intervening between the day of the transaction and the settlement day will postpone the settlement [illegible] one day.

Comp[illegible] will be made as heretofore [illegible] the day of the transaction but Clearing House sheets will be prepared on the morning of the first succeeding full business day following the day of the transaction instead of the same day as heretofore.

In case of transactions "regular way in bond selling and interest," interest shall be computed up to but not including the second full business day succeeding the day of the transaction.

In the case of securities lending at an interest rate, interest shall be computed for the number of days elapsed between delivery of the security by the lender and their return to him, which period is equal to the number of nights during which the loaned securities are in possession of the borrower.

In the case of securities lending at a premium, premiums shall be paid for the number of regular delivery days between the receipt of the securities by the borrower and their return to the lender.

Contracts falling due on holidays or half holidays will mature on the next succeeding full business day.

MARKET VIEWS IN STATE ST.

Hornblower & Weeks—The character of support encountered on Wednesday's sharp sell-off served to indicate that a decline of substantial proportions was unlikely to occur at this time.

Josephthal & Co.—Wednesday's action of the stock market was rather reassuring.

G. M. P. Murphy & Co.—We think speculators might profitably continue to operate on the basis that the list will not be able to push through to new highs in the immediate future.

Livingston & Co.—One should maintain a conservative position in stocks but should not add to them unless there is some new important development.

Theodore Prince & Co.—With two days of sell-off behind us technical position should be considerably strengthened and any favorable news should be reflected in higher prices later in the week.

J. S. Bache & Co.—Yesterday's rally appears technically entitled to some further extension today and any subsequent reactionary intervals should, in our opinion, continue to be employed for longer term accumulation activities.

Trend of Stocks Viewed as Upward

"Trend of stocks for the fall is clearly upward," declared Leroy D. Peavey, president of Babson's Reports, before the 20th Annual National Business Conference at Babson Park. "Any day in the coming week you may see in your morning paper that a radical program of inflation is to be adopted. That is what the stock market will seek to discount as far as possible. Such an announcement would doubtless cause a wave of buying in equities and an upward rush in many stocks. In this case, the wise investor will seek to place his cash in land, buildings, goods and raw commodities and the stocks that represent them."

The old tradition that Labor Day marks the end of the Summer lull has been shattered so frequently on past occasions that veteran traders have regarded such prophecies with more or less skepticism. [illegible]

Investment Trusts Still Hold Aloof

One factor contributing to the current market [illegible] the virtual absence of investment trust switching. It is reliably reported that big organizations of that type are doing little or nothing at present and have no immediate intentions of widespread shifting of positions. This policy of [illegible] aloof from the market for the time being [illegible] according to one source, a large private banking firm identified with investment trust operations, is bullish on the outlook the balance of this year.

Radio Industry Has Better Outlook

That the long suffering radio industry is approaching a sounder position is suggested by the Standard Statistics Company, of New York, in a current survey which says:

"During late boom days there were upward of 300 recognized radio manufacturers. Today there are less than 60, of which 10 per cent are believed to account for 95 per cent of total business. With distress stocks now understood to be fairly well liquidated, the belief prevails that prices will be marked up 20 per cent to 33 1-3 per cent on models for the coming season, which should at least offset increased costs under NRA. September should witness a sharp pick-up in production in preparation for the active fall season.

"While the virgin market has narrowed, there are about 22,000,000 wired homes and 6,000,000 homes not wired for electricity in this country. It is estimated that about 17,000,000 homes are now equipped with radios, of which at least half are over three years old, suggesting a good replacement market as buying power expands. Furthermore, close trade observers look for an active market in automobile radios next year. Some 200,000 car sets were sold in 1932, and the 1933 market is placed at 300,000 to 400,000 units."

Mail Order Catalog Prices Up

Prices quoted in the Fall catalog of National Bellas Hess, Inc., one of the country's largest mail order houses, although higher than in the past are low in comparison with present market prices, Carl D. Berry, president, announced today when the company started mailing 3,500,000 copies of the 156 page book.

Although the company [illegible] prices quoted in the catalog are equal to or less than present wholesale costs, as, for example, 64-60 print cloth is quoted at 11 cents a yard against today's market of 12 cents and women's full fashioned silk hose quoted at 49 cents, or about five cents under market prices for comparable quality. Other prices are proportionately low.

Boston Wool Mart Demand Moderate

"A moderate demand is being received on 56s, ⅜ blood, fleece and territory wools and on 64s and finer Western grown wools. Strictly combing 56s, ⅜ blood, bright Ohio fleeces readily bring 37-38c in the grease, but efforts to secure higher prices slow up sales. Territory wools of similar grade and class bring 73-75c, scoured basis. Good French combing 64s and finer territory wools in original bags are bringing 77-78c, scoured basis," says the Boston office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

BUSINESS RISE FOUND SHARED BY COALERS

Present earnings outlook for soft coal producers are seen in State Street as much improved over those prevailing earlier in the year. Prices have advanced materially, partly due to dage increases, and output has recently advanced to a point about 50 per cent above a year ago. The big uncertainty is the possibility that some of the recent heavy buying of coal has been in anticipation of higher costs under the code, as well as the threat that higher prices, sure to come, will reduce coal consumption.

In prices, the major change has come where most needed—in slack and other steam sizes, used for industrial purposes. This type of coal has been in large overproduction, and prices have been at a distress level. In the first few months of this year high-volatile slack was officially quoted by the companies at 25 to 50 cents a ton, but it is believed to have brought even less where the pressure to sell was acute. Now the official quotation is 80 cents to $1 a ton. A year ago the price was 40 to 65 cents. Low-volatile or "smokeless" slack has shown a nearly comparable advance.

Run-of-mine high volatile is currently quoted $1 to $1.40 per ton, a good advance over the low in April of 75 cents to $1, and also better than the quotation a year ago of 90 cents to $1. Run-of-mine "smokeless" at $1.50 to $1.85 is well above the low of $1.25, but shows but little change from a year ago.

For many weeks the output of bituminous coal has shown material increase over a year ago, with the recent gain running around 50 per cent. Weekly increases in August, for example were, 52 per cent, 58 per cent, 53 per cent and 46 per cent. For the year through August 26, output was 13.1 per cent ahead of last year.

It is believed that on the part of the mines, at least, there has been very little stocking of coal in anticipation of higher costs and prices. Industries may well have bought ahead of their needs, but government figures indicate this was done only to a limited extent in July by the utilities, which are among the major users. On April 1 last, coal stocks in this country were at much their lowest figure in ten years.

American Buying of French Lace Saves Industry

Washington, Sept. 7—American buying is practically the sole salvation of the lace industry of Calais, France, according to a report from Consul James G. Carter, made public today by the Commerce Department.

For the past year or so, Carter reports, the United States has been taking nearly all the output of this city which depends largely on the lace industry for its existence.

Notwithstanding the American business, the Calais lace makers are pessimistic concerning their future as orders from the United States are not sufficient to divide among the 250 or more manufacturers. Formerly, Calais lace was extensively sold in France, England and South America, but demand from these countries has steadily declined. Some attention is being paid to Morocco as a profitable outlet for laces, embroideries and nets.

Lace shipments from Calais to the United States in July last, the report shows, were valued at $288,541, an increase of nearly 50 per cent over the preceding month. During the first seven months of 1933, shipments were valued at $1,529,362 as compared with $1,401,758 during the corresponding period of 1932.

Bankers Urge Study of Monetary System

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Chicago, Sept. 7—Further evidence that the abnormal unanimity of opinion in the United States, which characterized President Roosevelt's political honeymoon, no longer prevails was given in critical resolutions adopted by members of the American Bankers Association here at the second session of their 59th annual convention.

Although urging members to take advantage of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's offer to buy the preferred shares of banks, the statements of policy, adopted, were mainly critical.

NRA RULINGS OPPOSED

The larger significance of the development was that it demonstrated that an opposition is developing in the United States. This follows resistance in some industrial quarters to seemingly arbitrary rulings by NRA.

On the constructive side the resolutions referred to the recovery of recent months and observed:

The Glass Steagall law, to which the bankers took exception, is not strictly speaking an administration measure. In expressing disagreement with the handiwork of Congress, the bankers declared:

"It has already become evident that the new banking act of 1933 does not provide a satisfactory and adequate legal basis for American banking and the reserve system. It is also clearly true that this nation cannot indefinitely continue to carry on its business affairs with a monetary system in so unsettled a state as it is in at preent. The American Bankers' Association is of the opinion that the vastly important problems of money and banking and central banking, that are pressing for solution and settlement, should be considered together and in relation to one another, and not separately and piecemeal."

COMMISSION URGED

Pointing a critical finger to the President's vast discretionary power, the bankers commended to the administration and to Congress "the advisability of refraining from experimental amendments to our banking legislation, and from experimental manipulations of our money system."

Somewhat belatedly the bankers, who were mainly negative at the banking hearing at Washington preceding the new legislation, recommend the creation of a commission to study all phases of the situation. The Federal Reserve has also been making important factual studies.

FRESH INTEREST IN TEXTILES

by the Associated Press

Wool goods—Buyers have been showing renewed interest in tropical worsteds which are being priced for the next season. Some of the mills have been bringing out the 12-ounce worsteds, which tailor better than the average tropicals and are suitable for both spring and summer wear.

Cotton yarn—Distributors are reported more optimistic than at any time since the code prices became effective. They feel, it is said, that buyers are becoming more "acclimated" to prices generally and more normal coverage is expected.

Carpet and Rugs — Although there has been another increase in prices of 3 to 8 per cent—the fourth since the middle of June—some moderate spot business is reported. Manufacturers look toward the reinstatement of orders which they had been forced to cancel on Saturday and which had been placed at the previous prices.

Springfield Loan Awarded in Boston

Springfield awarded to First National Bank of Boston, R. L. Day & Co., Estabrook & Co., and Whiting, Weeks & Knowles, jointly, at 101.13 for 3s, $890,000 1 to 5 year Springfield Municipal Relief loan, 1933, bonds dated September 1.

Kresge Sales for Month Are Larger

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)—August sales of S. S. Kresge Co. amounted to $9,920,932, an increase of 12.6 per cent over a year ago.

PERIOD OF TEST FOR TEXTILES

Montreal, Sept. 7—Critical months of the year for Dominion Textile Co. are approaching. In the fall, manufacturers of finished textile Dominion Textile's most important customers, come into the market to place orders for winter and spring delivery.

So far this fiscal year, or since April 1, orders have been pouring into Dominion Textile office in abnormal volume and contrary to seasonal trends, due to the impetus given to manufacturer buying by higher cotton prices. During the first quarter of the fiscal year, bookings of Dominion Textile approximated $6,000,000 against $2,500,000 during the like period of 1932. While higher prices accounted for a part of the increase, there also was a substantial gain on a yardage basis. A considerable part of the spring orders were for delayed delivery.

As a result of this rush of business, operations were increased to around capacity and the company's operations throughout July and August have continued well ahead of last year. A year ago operations were around 60 per cent of capacity.

Next month or so will largely determine what sort of showing Domestic Textile will make for the current fiscal year. Continued strength in commodity markets and indications of consumer purchasing power improving, will be indices which the manufacturer-buyer will watch in order to gauge his purchasing policy.

AMSTERDAM IS KEEPING EYE ON WALL ST.

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Amsterdam financial market, which follows Wall St. more closely than any other in Europe, has been thrown into complete confusion over the American situation by the swiftly moving events on this side of the Atlantic.

Deeply suspicious of any form of currency manipulation, Dutch investors to a considerable extent unloaded their holdings of American securities during the rise in Wall St. which culminated in July.

The wealthy capital center is now anxiously watching the NRA. Highest banking quarters express the earnest hope that the experiment prove successful and that its objectives may be achieved without recourse to drastically inflationary measures.

Holland is less fearful of dollar depreciation than it was early in the summer when gold was streaming out of the Bank of the Netherlands and Dutch funds were being transferred to London. But Holland was too close to the post-war inflation in Germany to be anything but alarmed at currency tinkering.

The Dutch gold standard received support from an unexpected quarter. When the dominions began bringing pressure on England this summer to reduce the pound sterling in its ratio to the gold currencies Dutch funds which had been sent to London on the theory that sterling was fully depreciated and the guilder perhaps not began to go home.

The trim barges of the Amsterdam canals began to tie up in front of the austere gray stone Bank of the Netherlands bringing yellow metal back to be loaded on the little four-wheeled truck which is pushed across the pavement to enter the bank through a low archway by a heavy iron gate.

But it is recognized that further sharp depreciation in both sterling and the dollar as against the gold currencies might make the position of the Dutch gold standard difficult.

Changes Are Narrow in Chicago Grains

Chicago, Sept. 7—Price changes were generally narrow in the grain market here today. Rallies at times lifted wheat to about even with yesterday's finish, but for the most part trade appeared to be maintaining a waiting attitude. Rumors that artificial minimum limits on Winnipeg quotations on wheat would be removed had no apparent influence on the market here. Corn and oats were easy, sympathizing with wheat action and influenced by favorable weather for maturing of corn.

Provisions held about steady, governed largely by action of hog values.

Cotton Is Mixed in New York Dealings

New York, Sept. 7—Cotton futures held steady and mixed with an exceedingly narrow range today as aggressive operations on either side of the market were lacking. With Liverpool 3 to 5 American points higher than due, the market here opened unchanged to 2 points higher. Late prices were 1 point higher to 2 points lower with October up 1 at 9.16, December unchanged at 9.35, January unchanged at 9.44, March off 1 at 9.60 and May off 2 at 9.78.

Liverpool Cotton Market Is Quiet

Liverpool, Sept. 7 (INS)—Spot cotton was quiet and steady today. Receipts totaled 1000 bales, including 700 American bales. Middling fair was quoted at 6.65d, strictly good middling 6.30d, good middling 5.90d, strictly middling 5.60 d, middling 5.45d, strictly low middling 5.30 d, low middling 5.10d, strict good ordinary 4.90d and good ordinary 4.60d.

SHARE PRICES ARE MIXED IN BOSTON

Leading shares were mixed in late dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Utilities were generally firm, while rails held steady. American Telephone and Boston Elevated improved fractionally. Edison Electric sagged about a point. New England Telephone was steady around its previous closing level.

Textile issues were easy with American Woolen dipping a minor fraction, while Amoskeag dropped a point. Atchison and Pennsylvania gained in the carrier group. Boston & Maine prior preferred sagged 3 points.

Venezuela Holding reached a new high for the year while Venezuela Mexican was down fractionally. Fractional losses were chalked up for Anaconda Coper, Sullivan Machine, Waldorf, Warren Brothers and United Shoe preferred. Shoe common gained.

Dedication of the big and beautiful new Boston Postoffice will call for colorful civic ceremonies hereabouts on Saturday just before noon. As to whether these will be wirelessed, no promising word is made known at this writing. There will, however, be a banquet under Boston Chamber of Commerce auspices, given in honor of Postmaster General James A. Farley. That is arranged to occupy the local air waves (WBZ-WBZA and WNAC) from 1 until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

OFFICIALDOM ON HAND

Elliot Wadsworth, Chamber of Commerce president, will supervise the above festive board gathering. Governor Ely and Mayor Curley are slated to deliver welcoming addresses. Senator David I. Walsh is also due to speak as is William E. Hurley, Postmaster of Boston.

WHAT, NO WFDR?

Here's just a wee bit of crusading your conscientious "colyum" space wishes to enter upon. There was a specific plan under way in New York recently for a radio station there to be called WFDR, but developments at present would seem to indicate little is being heard further about the idea. Some broadcasting institution would be making considerable of a grand gesture in honor of President Roosevelt by labeling an air outlet WFDR. Certainly such would have been done in the days when George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were living U. S. idols, that is, had radio existed among us then.

CLIP COUPONS FOR BIG DAY AT NANTASKET

The Boston Evening American, through the Nantasket Steamboat Company and directors of Paragon Park, have arranged for another coupon day next Stauraday. All you have to do is clip the coupons from the Boston Evening American on Friday for a fine, refreshing boat ride down the harbor to Nantasket.

Right along throughout the season the Boston Evening American has been bringing joy and happiness to thousands of mothers and their little ones. The summer vacation season is all over after this week, so another excursion and outing has been arranged for Saturday.

The only thing you have to do is to clip the coupons from the Boston Evening American on Friday.

Just think, you can purchase a round trip ticket on the Nantasket steamer from Boston for the small sum of 25 cents. When you get to Nantasket you can purchase another 25 cent ticket which takes you into Paragon Park and on or into 11 amusements.

Should a child be over five and under 12 years of age accompanied by mother the cost for round trip is only 10 cents. Each mother and child must have a coupon.

Then there is the Kiddie Park in Paragon Park for the real small tots. Well, all you need is to clip the coupons and exchange same inside Paragon Park with 15 cents and there are seven rides on various miniature amusements.

So don't forget on Friday to cut the excursion and outing coupons from the Boston Evening American and journey to Nantasket Beach and Paragon Park on Saturday.

Gossip About People You Know

6747 BEHIND BARS

On July 31 of the present year there were 6747 inmates in all the prisons of the state, 130 less than in the peak year 1914. Up to and including 1920, when the aggregate number reached the low mark of 2352, the decline in prisoners was gradual. From then on up to and including July this year almost the exact reverse was true.

BARTLETT A DEMOCRAT

Joseph W. Bartlett, chairman of the State Emergency Finance Board which rejected Mayor Curley's Huntington ave. subway plan, although city solicitor for years in the Republican stronghold of Newton, is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat. His father and grandfather before him were prominent Democrats, too.

CHANCE ALL HE WANTS

Senator James C. Scanlan, of Somerville, one of the large number of aspirants for mayor in the non-partisan primary there, says that he never goes in for anything unless he believes that he has a reasonable chance to win.

FISHERMAN EXTRAORDINARY

Corporation Counsel Sam Silverman spends week-ends fishing in Lake Winnepesaukee under the tutelage of Wolfboro's skilled guide, Fred Copp, who always lands a large mess, with the aid of Boston's legal advisor.

DAMON AND PYTHIAS

M. Martin Gouldey, candidate for the City Council in Ward 4, announced today that Bernard Parfumorse had abandoned his plan to run for the school committee in order to help Gouldey in his campaign.

JUST BIDING HIS TIME

While the scouts of the 12 candidates for mayor were busy today harvesting signatures for nomination papers, wiseacres were wondering if Congressman John W. McCormack of Dorchester would make it "a baker's dozen." The congressman's friends say he isn't superstitious and that the fact that he would be 13th to enter the race wouldn't deter him.

FOLEY CAMP QUIET

There hasn't been a yip to date from the Foley camp denying or affirming the claim that they demanded that Mayor Curley use his influence to pull "Teddy" Glynn out of the race and that the mayor's reply was that he would support the chairman of the street commission.

NEW DEAL AND SQUARE DEAL

"A New Deal and a Square Deal," is the campaign slogan of William S. Hennessy, Jr., candidate for the City Council in Ward 15, Dorchester. Hennessy is a member of the Mass. Catholic Order of Foresters and the Knights of Columbus.

TOLD SHE HAD CANCER

Mrs. F. E. Dyan, [illegible], Vt., says: "I was told by two Boston specialists that I had [illegible] and advised to go to the hospital and be treated with Radium. I was frightened and when I read of Dr. Walsh, I had him treat me. That was three years ago and I have had no trouble since. When Dr. Walsh treated me I lived on Gadsden St., Brighton. Since then I moved to Brattleboro, Vt. I came to visit in Boston Aug. 28 and thought my case if published would help others who suffer as I did. That is my reason for this testimonial."

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Mme. Bella—

Is there any modern scientific, or semi-scientific, counterpart of the primitive concept which may be compared to the hylozoism of the Greek physicists?

J. B. HASSELBLADT.

Ans.—Auntie B. begs leave to decline from entering into controversial brawls which will get her nowhere in the long run, Mr. Hasselbladt.

THE HONOR ROLL

Among the rank and file who are taking the NRA as they find it, Jacob J. Glutz stands out like a sore thumb. A chain store manager with a soul, J. J. has thrilled his superiors through and through by his courage and initiative in handling the situation. Immediately upon tacking up his Blue Eagle, Mr. Gluts purchased a stop-watch and announced that each clerk would automatically be given a vacation when not waiting upon a customer.

Vermont Falls in Line

Yankee Spirit Abhors Prohibition

The sovereign people of the sovereign State of Vermont have voted for repeal of prohibition by a majority of two to one.

Vermont thus becomes the twenty-fifth successive State to declare for abolition of the prohibitory system and for the elimination of all the grave and notorious evils it has produced in American life.

There could have been no sound reason to assume that the independent, thoughtful people of the Green Mountain State would face this grave issue differently than their fellow-Americans elsewhere throughout the country.

They are a law-abiding people. They will have respect for any law which can command respect in good conscience and in good morals.

They are an independent people. The sumptuary prohibition law ran counter to their homely ideas of freedom. The average Yankee will avoid a fight so long as there is any reasonable chance of conciliation, but once you run him to the line where his personal liberty and freedom are attacked, he will stand on that line and all the power on earth can't budge him.

The fact so plainly shown by the result in Vermont is that the people of the United States are determined to be done with prohibition. They want a new system of liquor control that will promote temperance, respect and a legal income to the public treasury that will reduce the enormous burden of high taxes.

Winter in America

Portugal Attache Praises Climate

You hear much of the French and Italian Rivieras.

But if you are in pursuit of a mild, soothing, agreeable Winter climate, there is utterly no reason to leave the United States.

Professor Maia Aguas, attache of the Consulate of Portugal in Boston, has made an interesting study of the climatic conditions of the famous Winter resorts of both Europe and the United States and he finds that Los Angeles, for example, ranks as well as any of them.

If you would travel, he suggests the Portuguese Riviera, Estoril on the "Sunny Coast," in the Garden of Europe, where the Gulf Stream makes the climate more comparable to the ideal conditions which exist in the Winter in our own Los Angeles.

Whether you travel or stay at home and work, at least you will be impressed by the fairness of this gentleman who serves the government of Portugal in Boston.

Mr. Ford's Gray Eagle

By Robert H. Hemphill

Financial Authority

Whenever the headlines get to running in big type right along for some time it's a safe bet that sooner or later HENRY FORD will step out into the center of the stage and stop the show.

Half the time—maybe all the time—he doesn't mean to do it at all—never thinks of it that way. He is just that kind of a man. Just an independent man with a head crammed with plain old-fashioned COMMON SENSE.

There are some other things to think about, too. A long time since—long before anyone else was thinking about these things—Henry put up his own eagle. It wasn't a Blue Eagle; it was red—it was radical, so it was said, and was going to ruin the automotive industry. Five dollars a day minimum. He paid it to the boys that swept out his shop. A good many years ago that was.

I remember one big manufacturer told me Henry was insane—said he wouldn't last a year. He is still in it—at the top—and the man I speak of went out of business a long time back. We ought to think of that.

I'm for the recovery program. It's MY President's plan. IT MEANS ACTION OF SOME SORT.

If it does not work the President will try some other plan. He said so. Maybe he has one all figured out now—just in case.

I think any plan will work that loosens up the banks and gets the money into circulation, and this recovery plan will freeze out a lot of chiselers—and I hate them. They just clutter up the whole works.

But now about that code. I can't help wishing Henry had helped to write it. His old eagle has been up there so long and took so many jolts without ruffling a feather. The smoke and soot changed its color from red to blue, and now it's faded to a dull gray—almost forgotten.

I can't keep from thinking of this and wishing there was no division of sentiment about it at all.

I can't help remembering that he developed the automobile business; that mass production was Henry Ford's dream. The central idea that revolutionized American manufacturing—spread to all industries—revolutionized them all.

I would like to see these codes given a fair trial. They may solve a lot of problems quick, but I don't like to think of restraint on outstanding Americanism that has carried the torch away ahead of the procession for so many years.

I don't like that word "restraint"—it sounds too much like prohibition. It seems to me we ought to look around and find some things that need pushing—not holding back.

What about the banks?

They are not in it. Said they might come in later if they liked the [illegible].

General Johnson says they are not in, and we've got to have the money in circulation—surely, everyone knows that. What about working on that for a few days and let this automotive matter develop?

I would like to see Henry help write a code and get the reaction. Get both sides of the story—maybe the other side would be helpful, too.

We need speed, but if we run off the road we'll waste a lot of time backing up and getting started again, and this automotive code matter looks like a sharp curve to me.

Not Equal to the Job

Secretary of War Dern made such an accusation the other day in denouncing our "scarlet army of crime." He thought the American people ought to be "aroused." But the plain facts are, as William Randolph Hearst immediately replied to Secretary Dern:

> "They are MORE than aroused. They are INTENSELY DISTURBED by the situation, and they are particularly disturbed over the INABILITY OF THEIR ELECTED AND DULY AUTHORIZED PUBLIC OFFICIALS to cope with the situation . . .
>
> "Unless the incumbent public officials perform their duty without further alibis and evasions, there will be a strong public sentiment in favor of REPLACING these recalcitrant officials with a more capable and conscientious lot."

There is PLENTY of racketeering in Boston. You read about it in the newspapers daily.

Are the State and local officials going to keep on caging a few canaries, and letting the BIG BIRDS alone?

New York Day by Day

The Old Vaudeville

O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—A wandering minstrel blowing sourly on a clarinet for luncheon diners across the way at Chatham Walk has somehow touched off a stinging nostalgia for the old-time musical act of vaudeville. The curtain went up on an ordinary room scene. Remember?

There were musical instruments all about on scattered stands with silver starred plush throws. A straight man in velveteen smoking jacket opens with: "I put an ad in the paper for a smart boy to work around the studio. It's 8 o'clock and no answer." A sudden knock. "Ah, there he is now."

A negro with puff sleeves, big red bow tie, Carnera shoes and a fright wig dashes in and rushes right out again. Then is coaxed back, removes eight vests and lights a cigar that begins to expel stars like a Roman candle. His first imitation is on a clarinet of a cow choking on an apple.

Then he plucks a whisk broom out of his hip pocket and brushes the ashes off his cigar. He makes a violin sound like an old church organ and say "Howdy folks!" The wind-up of the turn is an imitation of a minstrel band coming down the Main street playing "The Turkish Patrol." A riot of noise.

* * *

Hap Ward, old time showman, has a stunt that produces the same effect on every actor of importance. He mentions seeing them in their current play. He thought it a wow but murmurs solicitously: "But, say, what was the matter with you?" Invariably the answers run from "Just received bad news" to "I was almost blind with a splitting headache." Invariably an alibi.

* * *

And Charlie Russell, the western painter, used to tell of an old desert miner who traipsed into Tucson without his partner of 50 years. He was thoroughly disgusted. "We had just make dry camp," he explained, "when a pack rat bit off his thumb right up to the second notch. The way he carried on you'd a thought it was a grizzly."

* * *

Eugene Field during his brilliant columning days—and never has columning attained such effulgence!—in Chicago had a child-like love for practical jokes. In his office he had but one chair and that collapsible. The more dignified the caller the more he would maneuver to jockey him into the chair.

* * *

Thingumabobs: Anna May Wong is doing a Limehouse picture at Ealing near London . . . Bird Millman of the circus is running a turkey ranch near Canon City, Col. . . . Babe Ruth uses snuff while playing . . . The Will Hamiltons are in London until late fall . . . Marie Corelli, who wrote "Wormwood," the best tale of a Paris absinthe fiend, never saw Paris or tasted absinthe . . . Paris expatriates, driven out by the falling dollar, now have a colony in Shanghai called "Du Done Runaway."

John J. McGraw, despite rigid discipline when commanding the Giants, often relaxed into brief clutches of humor. There was the time when the team was training in Marlin he received a letter from a Texas longhorn who wanted to join. McGraw wrote him gravely Mathewson had slowed up, Chief Myers was in a terrific slump and that Donlin was not doing so well so there was a chance. He wound up asking the job seeker what position he could play. In a few days came back a letter enclosing a photograph with the informtion: "I play a stooping position."

* * *

In earlier days there was a big league umpire named Byron. He had a poetic way of trilling decisions. A musical "stree-ike" and a cadent "Yo-o-o are out!" After a time the ribbers began referring to him as Lord Byron. There was one double-header game where the fans were particularly annoying. They jeered at the umpire's walk, his voice, and imitated other mannerisms. Finally Lord Byron could stand it no longer, and jerking off his mask he rushed to the stands shouting: "Cut out them personalities!" There was a sudden silence, and finally a booming voice high up and far back screamed: "Cut out them grammar!"

* * *

But the prize mot of the Polo Grounds was when a very cocky player was retained as a substitute batter. He was a showoff. One day when a one sided game reached the last half of the 9th inning with a score 14 to 1, he was sent in to bat. The umpire glanced at him, removed his cap, and yelled: "Huttin now batting—for exercise!"

By Elsie Robinson

Square-Shooters?

Elsie Robinson

COLLEGE DAYS. What are those college days going to do to the future bosses of America?

ARE THEY GOING TO TURN 'EM INTO SQUARE-SHOOTING CITIZENS, OR SUPERCILIOUS SNOBS?

How come? Am I starting a campaign against colleges? No, I'm not. I'm 100 per cent for colleges. I wish every youngster could get the right kind of a college education. But—

I HAVE A LOT OF MEAN SUSPICIONS ABOUT SOME OF THE THINGS THAT GO ON IN OUR COLLEGES.

And here's a college grad who agrees with me. The following communication is his. It's about fraternities—and plenty more. It's an arraignment of our whole college system which, says one, G. Mc., IS DOOMING DEMOCRACY!

If you can bear to face some red hot facts, read his letter—then tell this column what you think about it.

Dear Elsie:

Can you—or any other honest-to-goodness, grown up American—tell me what our educational system is doing, all cluttered up in its upper branches, so-called, with the Greek letter sorority and fraternity bunk?

Yes; I am a university graduate. University of Nebraska, 1911. And you'd think that in twenty years or so I would have got over feeling all hot and bothered about it. I hated the system in school. I never could overcome my feelings of outraged surprise and amusement at the faculty members kowtowing to the Greeks; and I always consoled myself with the reflection that in the great busy outside world, the sacred calf would be forgotten.

But, no! Every paper you pick up, every article you see about education, every society column, has its bit to say about the "Greek letter" connections of the man or woman under discussion. Are they being married? Ha! She was a Kappa and he was Sigma Chi. Are the colleges under discussion? Leave it to the bright-eyed young Mary Jones of the Pi Phis or Henry Smith of the Dekes to speak for the assembled youngsters of the nation.

Maybe this looks like a lot of heat to manifest over something which is of minor importance. Well, it's not of minor importance, Elsie. Anything which has to do with education of youngsters, along in that "green salad" age that a college deals with, is of major importance.

We have these youngsters in school among other things to help them form the right sort of ideals and values. And if the best that a college can do is to send "rush cards" out to a few favored little dears throughout the high schools of the state, and get the little freshies all divided off before they've even seen each other or the university, then God help this democracy.

Yes, I know there are "mixers," and so on for the great unwashed, well along in the year, after things have started. All the important decisions have been made then. All the goats have been sorted from the sheep.

I know how they did at Nebraska U—fenced you off into odd corners; wouldn't let you sit at the tables by the windows because tradition had assigned each sorority a table sacred to them (and you sat in stuffy corners, even if every one of the Greek tables was empty). You weren't to wear a bright high school or society pin of any kind because it would look as if you were infringing upon the vested rights of the Greeks. You weren't to sit near a group of them in class; they might want to reserve seats for their own crowd.

This isn't a case of sour-grapes. My folks were education-loving Scotch. They revered "honors." For their sake, I made Phi Beta Kappa took the pin, and never put it on. For I felt then, as I feel now, that the whole system was wrong.

It starts a youngster off on the wrong foot; gives him an entirely wrong sense of values. Perhaps a hard-hearted oldster might buck it, but no bewildered youngster can. And so his whole horizon becomes limited and dominated by the almighty dollar and social position before he is in college a month.

It's an intolerable system. There is no excuse for it in tax-supported public schools. And I'm convinced that one of the most dangerous and hypocritical things in American life is that we boast of being democratic, yet brand our finest young lives by such a stupid, undemocratic, class institution.

Summer Cottage Equipment

I think a summer home should be Located by a lake or sea,
But sea and lake and mountains tall
To rest, when all is done and said,
I want a comfortable bed.

I do not like to lie upon
Aunt Mary's cot (long dead and gone).
That ancient mattress made of straw
Should be prohibited by law.
Though once on it she snuggled deep
No longer it induces sleep.

It is a lumpy thing and thin
That scratches me as I crawl in;
And howsoe'er I twist and turn
The hang of it I cannot learn.
It has a fearful list to right
That bothers me throughout the night.

A summer cottage ought to be
Howe'er so sweetly birdies sing
Sleep is a necessary thing.
And when at night I draw the spread
I want a comfortable bed.

History Repeats Itself in Works Program

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Roosevelt history repeats itself in the announcement of the Secretary of the Interior regarding the employment of American labor on public works, paid for in whole or in part out of the federal treasury.

Mr. Ickes serves notice that all contractors engaged on projects let by the federal administrator for public works will be permitted "to do their hiring in the customary way."

Contracts will continue to go to the lowest responsible bidder, regardless of whether he has been or has not been in the habit of employing American wage earners who are members of a labor union.

Consequently, many jobless Americans will be relieved of the expense of joining or rejoining a labor union in order to get employment under the public works program of the Roosevelt administration now in power.

Thirty years ago this month the Roosevelt administration, then in power, took, in principle, the same position regarding employment in the federal service at Washington.

LABOR PROTESTED

On May 18, 1903, the public printer had removed from the position of assistant foreman of the government printing office William A. Miller, giving as the reason for his removal that Miller had been expelled from a labor union.

Miller then filed a complaint with the United States civil service commission that his removal violated the civil service laws. After careful investigation of the case, the commission decided that Miller's removal was unlawful and requested his reinstatement.

President Roosevelt immediately ordered the public printer to reinstate Miller, saying in his letter to the public printer that no rule or regulations of a union "can be permitted to override the laws of the United States, which it is my sworn duty to enforce."

The Washington Central Labor Union promptly condemned the reinstatement of Miller and started a propaganda against the President's policy. With the approval of the American Federation of Labor, this bureau sent circulars to 300 central labor unions throughout this country, which claimed a membership at that time of 2,500,000 wage-earners.

This circular read in part:

"Whereas the President of the United States has seen fit to reinstate W. A. Miller . . . and has also committed himself to the policy of the open shop, as shown by his letters,

"Resolved, that the order of the President cannot be regarded in any but an unfriendly light."

T. R.'S ANSWER

A short time later, as the request of Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, President Roosevelt received at the White House the president and council of that body and the Miller case was brought to the President's attention.

Theodore Roosevelt met the challenge of their criticism in a public statement, in which he said:

"I am President of all the people of the United States without regard to creed, color, birthplace, occupation or social condition. My aim is to do equal and exact justice as among them all. In the employment and dismissal of men in the government service I can no more recognize the fact that a man does or does not belong to a union as being for or against him than I can recognize the fact that he is a Protestant or a Catholic, a Jew or a Gentile, as being for or against him."

There is in the White House today another Roosevelt, who is also "President of all the people of the United States" without regard to whether they do or do not belong to a labor union.

Human Side of the News

Racketeering Born of Machine Politics—Great Federal Secret Service Needed

By Edwin C. Hill

The word has gone forth from the White House and the war is on against the racketeer. The President orders that no expense be spared, that every resource of the government be employed, while Congress, through a special committee of the Senate, is collecting evidence and is ready for a complete expose of a most vicious and un-American system which is honeycombing the entire country.

It is one of the shortcomings of a Democracy that organized lawlessness should have been permitted to sprout up and to mature into such a menace. Loose laws, incompetent and dishonest enforcement, open and secret alliance of crime with political machines—these have nourished the cancer which calls now for the sharp, decisive thrust of the surgeon's knife.

Racketeering is a colorful work. In plain brutal language it is blackmail and robbery with intent to maim or to kill. Just as we seem to have developed the picturesque term "bandit" to take the place of the real word murderer, so we misname these extortioners and conspirators and tolerate, even glorify them in our fiction and films.

The racketeer of today is the counterpart of the English highwaymen who danced on Tyburn Hill. He is no more than the road agent of the Wild West, who kept the vigilantes busy stretching rope. He is kin to the pirates of the Barbary Coast and the onetime Mafia bands of Sicily which it took a dictator, Mussolini, to round up and remove for all time.

Recently the district attorney of New York, in naive astonishment, announced that racketeering was so prevalent in the metropolis that it extended all the way through the social system from the infant's milk to the octogenarian's funeral. Getting down to brass tacks, he meant that an invisible government was solidly entrenched and powerfully at work collecting tribute directly and indirectly from every man, woman and child in the community.

He could have gone farther and deeper and said that this invisible and malicious government is only the hideous outgrowth of the graft and spoils systems of machine politics. All this should come out in the public hearings before Senator Copeland's committee. Col. Franklin S. Hutchinson, its counsel, has had the entire staff of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice at his command, and when he has finished and laid the cards on the table for public opinion to read—then we may see the rats of protection scurrying from the sinking ship.

Only the other day a prosecuting official in New York stated baldly that the failure of municipalities to deal with the racketeer was due to the fact that almost invariably wherever one found a racketeer he also found some petty political boss as either the racketeer's friend or his undercover partner. This condition is the reason why Joseph B. Keenan, assistant to Attorney-General Cummings, is calling for a federal detective force such as England's Scotland Yard and it is more than likely that Congress in its next session will create such a force, for if it isn't patent to everyone the Senate investigation will make very obvious the fact that outlawry has been allowed to go so far in our most populous communities that the state is unable to protect its merchants and tradespeople.

The Capone case is an example. Only the power of the federal government was supreme above that of this lord of the underworld. The breaking up of the fish ring in New York is another. For years by intimidation, gangster tactics and personal violence prices were fixed and trade curtailed. The state and the city could do nothing or would do nothing. But the federal government came through with 80 indictments.

Nothing less than a great Federal Secret Service can stamp out the racketeer. Deprive him of the protection of political rings and he will be, merely, a cringing, cowardly thief. Instead of being on speaking and golfing terms with the police officers and the petty prosecutors and judges, he will have instilled in him the fear which he and his gangs have put into the hearts of honest but unprotected tradespeople.

He will know that an unseen power will be dogging his footsteps, a power much more to be dreaded because it is invisible. These Secret Service men will not be known, their names never revealed. The gangster will never know but that one or two of them may be in his own mob. Money or votes won't be able to buy immunity.

Familiarity breeds contempt. And it is the familiarity of the gangster and mob leader with the present state and municipal forces that has done more than anything to embolden him and raise him to his present estate. A supreme, invisible force such as the Secret Service will put an end to all this. Let us temporize no more. Let us do things.
